

ADMIRAL ZUMWALT

Cong Attacks Go On

SAIGON (UPI) — Opening what U.S. officials called a new "summer offensive," the Communists shelled 159 Allied bases and towns overnight—their heaviest round of mortar and rocket attacks since the Tet offensive in 1968.

Light Casualties

In addition, military spokesmen said, they slammed ground attacks into three U.S. and South Vietnamese outposts guarding approaches to the capital from Cambodia and lost 278 men in the process against "light" Allied casualties.

Viet Cong gunners fired one man-sized rocket into Saigon and staged nine terror attacks late Sunday and early today, killing seven persons and wounding 22. Government troops routed a Viet Cong squad trying to set up a mortar tube in a school six blocks from the presidential palace.

The terror offensive included an abortive attempt against the U.S. Navy commander in Vietnam, Adm. Elmo R. Zumwalt. Terrorists threw a bomb into his front yard in Saigon Sunday but Zumwalt was not there and no one was hurt.

Meanwhile, President Nixon met today with his military commander in Vietnam, Gen. Creighton W. Abrams, and announced he would report to the American people in a television address Wednesday night on the prospects for peace.

Press Secretary Ronald Ziegler said Abrams returned to Washington from Saigon Sunday night. He met with the President at the White House, along with other top military advisers, and was having lunch there with Nixon and several congressional leaders.

U.S. intelligence sources described the overnight surge as the "prelude" of a "summer offensive," with indicators pointing to mid-May as a high point, with Saigon as the main target. Ho Chi Minh's birthday is May 19.

Having replaced their losses from the February-March offensive, about 65,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have begun moving into position for the attack around Saigon, the sources said. They predicted the drive would end in defeat.

Tied to Paris Talks

U.S. officials said the offensive was designed to bolster the Communist position at the Vietnam peace talks in Paris by increasing American casualties and forcing U.S. public opinion to demand a quick end to the war.

The American command said 70 of the Communist rocket and mortar attacks were "significant," meaning that the target suffered damage or casualties. Twenty-three of the targets were South Vietnamese cities or towns, including Hue on the northern coast.

It was the heaviest wave of overnight shelling since Jan. 30-31, 1968, when the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese launched their greatest drive of the war, the Tet offensive. It carried into virtually every major South Vietnamese city, Saigon included.

Overall losses in the barrages were "light," the U.S. command said. Twenty-nine U.S.

bases, among them the Long Binh-Bien Hoa complex north of Saigon, were hit.

Set Up Guns on Balcony

A four-member Viet Cong mortar team—two men and two women—seized the three-story Ban Co Elementary School six blocks from the presidential palace late Sunday and set up their guns on a balcony.

South Vietnamese policemen and soldiers caught the guerrillas before they could fire the mortar and in three hours of battling killed the two men and captured the two women. There were no government casualties.

It was the first fighting inside the capital since the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese launched their winter-spring offensive Feb. 23. On that day, a similar battle flared around a police station in Cholon, Saigon's Chinatown section.

Apollo 10 Ready For Countdown

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) —

The Apollo 10 countdown starts at midnight tonight. If all goes well, three astronauts will be launched on a trail-blazing moon orbit next Sunday.

The mission is to take man within 50,000 feet of the moon. That will pave the way for the Apollo 11 team to attempt a lunar landing in July.

Flying Apollo 10 will be an all-veteran crew: Air Force Col. Thomas P. Stafford and Navy Cmdrs. John W. Young and Eugene A. Cernan. Stafford and Young have made two space trips each and Cernan one.

The countdown will take 93 hours, but it will be spread out over 5½ days. The additional time will be used up in several planned holds to give the crew rest and time to correct any problems which may arise.

Five Days

There are only five days this month when the moon is in a favorable position to receive visitors from earth.

If Apollo 10 cannot get off the ground during this period, the launch will have to be postponed until the next opportune interval in mid-June. That could delay the planned July 16 liftoff of Apollo 11 until August.

Stafford, who will command Apollo 10, says the flight "is designed to tie together all the knots, to try to sort out all the unknowns and pave the way for a lunar landing mission—do everything exactly as on the landing mission except the final descent to the lunar surface."

"When the Apollo 11 astronauts hear our description and study our photographs we want them to feel as if they had been there themselves," he said.

Same Path

After streaking for three days into space, the astronauts are to fire themselves into orbit 69 miles above the moon, following almost the same path as the Apollo 8 pilots did on their moon orbit journey in December.

Halfway through their 2½-day stay in orbit, Stafford and Cernan will transfer through a connecting tunnel into a lunar module, or LEM, the bug-like vehicle designed to land men on the moon.

They will detach it from the command ship and jockey into an orbit that twice will take them less than 10 miles above the intended Apollo 11 landing site. They will take pictures and radar readings as they pass over the target area near the crater Moltke in the Sea of Tranquility.

They will fly a tricky rendezvous to rejoin Young in the command ship, making the same moves Apollo 11 must exercise to leave the moon after its landing.

Once Stafford and Cernan have returned to the command vehicle, they will kick the LEM free in space and spend another day in orbit, photographing potential landing areas and learning how to navigate around the moon.

Then all three will start the 54-hour return trip to a splashdown in the Pacific Ocean.

The flight is to last eight days, five minutes.

Ohayo Mt. Raid -- Drug Charges

By WALTER S. CLARK

WOODSTOCK

Investigation of a complaint from the owner of a cabin in a densely wooded area off Yerry Hill Road near the peak of Ohayo Mountain late Sunday night, resulted in the arrests of two men and two women on charges involving narcotics and implements used to administer drugs.

The arrests resulted from a raid staged by town authorities under the command of Chief William Waterous and state police BCI officers and uniformed men from the Kingston zone headquarters in Lake Katrine.

Taken into custody on charges of criminal possession of dangerous drugs in the fourth degree, and criminal possession of implements capable of administering narcotics were:

Harvey Backer, 24, of 148 South Manning Boulevard, Albany; Barry Rubin, 25, of 365 East 54th Street, Brooklyn; Susan Atchley, 24, of Lakeville, Conn.; and Joyce DiDomenico, 25, of 722 East 40th Street, Brooklyn.

Arraigned early today before Town Justice Rudolf Baumgarten, the four defendants were ordered held in lieu of $500 bail each and hearing was adjourned until a later date. Bail of $250 was fixed on each of the two counts.

According to Chief Waterous, local police received a complaint from Martin Fleer, owner of the cabin on Yerry Hill Road that had been rented by the group. Fleer told authorities that when he went to the building to collect rent that was overdue, he found the interior of the structure in shambles. Fleer also complained that as he glanced around the cabin he saw what appeared to be pipes used for administering drugs and implements capable of administering narcotics.

Waterous said a search warrant was obtained from Justice Baumgarten, and a raiding party was organized.

Before midnight the raiding party comprising the chief, officers Charles Wolven and James Kinns of the Woodstock police, and State Police Zone Sergeant Donald Pinto, BCI

Investigators John Salters and Joseph Ventriglia and Trooper A. J. Scarselli went to the top of Ohayo Mountain.

Waterous said that as the officers entered the building they found the four defendants all sitting on the floor in front of a roaring fireplace. He said incense was burning in the main room of the building and blankets and other bedding were hanging at the windows.

The four defendants put up no resistance as they were taken into custody. The raiders confiscated several pipes and other implements used for administering narcotics.

Chief Waterous also said a quantity of drugs was seized. This was sent to the State Police laboratory for analysis to determine the nature of the drugs.

During the raid, police noticed a small monkey prancing around the interior of the cabin. They said later it belonged to Rubin, one of the defendants.

The monkey was taken to the county jail with the prisoners, and later it was turned over to the Ulster County SPCA.

CLEANUP — North Dakota National Guardsmen, with fixed bayonets, moved into Zap, N. D., over the weekend, to remove 2,500 young people on a weekend holiday. The students didn't have enough money to get to any fancy vacation spots for their spring vacation, so they selected the most unlikely spot they could think in North Dakota and proclaimed it the "Fort Lauderdale of the North." The guard was called in after the students went on a rampage of destruction in the town. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Evidence Against Fortas Reported to Be Growing

NEW YORK (AP) — Atty. Gen. John Mitchell reportedly has met with Chief Justice Earl Warren and asked him to urge Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas to resign.

Newsweek magazine said Sunday that Mitchell, acting on orders from President Nixon, told Warren that the Justice Department has "far more serious" information than has been revealed so far and that "the facts were bound to come out eventually."

The magazine said Mitchell hoped Warren would go to Fortas with these facts and suggest he resign.

Heavy Pressure

Fortas, whose nomination last year by President Lyndon B. Johnson to be chief justice was withdrawn under heavy congressional pressure, has come under new fire since the disclosure that he accepted, but later returned, a $20,000 fee from a charitable foundation set up by the family of Louis Wolfson, a financier now in jail after being convicted of violating securities laws.

Rep. H. R. Gross, R-Iowa, said Sunday he has prepared articles of impeachment against Fortas and will present them in the House unless the justice resigns in a "reasonable time."

He did not say what he views as a reasonable time.

Gross said his resolution accuses Fortas of malfeasance, misconduct and impropriety, based largely on the fee from the Wolfson foundation.

A few hours before Gross' statement, Sen. Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota became the first Democratic senator to say publicly that Fortas should resign.

National Tragedy

At a news conference in Minneapolis, Mondale called the situation a national tragedy and said he was acting "because no one else seemed willing to do it."

Newsweek also said President Nixon discussed Fortas at the regular White House strategy session last week, urging party leaders "not to involve this matter in partisanship" and expressing hope that no one would rush toward impeachment.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, the House Republican leader, said Sunday the impeachment move is Gross' affair alone and the GOP leadership has neither taken a position on the matter nor considered taking it.

Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., said Sunday Fortas should give "some further explanation" of his involvement with Wolfson. Celler is chairman of the House Judiciary Committee, which would have to act on impeachment proceedings.

FBI to Join Probe Of the Meat Haul

KINGSTON committed in lieu of bail of $500 each. The four defendants indicated they would post bail for the release pending disposition of the charges.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation was notified of the arrests and New Jersey authorities were expected here to question the four men in connection with the reported theft of the truck, which had been stolen in Kearny, N. J. sometime last Friday.

Charged with criminal possession of stolen property and held for hearing later this month were:

Those Charged

Frank Falanga, 56, of Marlboro; his brother, Jerry Falanga, 53, of 385 Mansion Street, Poughkeepsie; Myron Foote, 61, of 190 Henry Street, Binghamton; and Edward Rogg, a truck driver, of 162 Colonial Drive, Silver Springs, Md.

Beef and Lamb

Teletype alarms had been sent out for the missing vehicle and the cargo of meat, which was described in one report as beef and in another as lamb.

According to reports search was conducted throughout this area and in communities between Kearny and upstate cities.

Investigator David Wachtel of the Newburgh State Police BCI detail reportedly obtained information that the missing truck had been seen in the Marlboro area, and investigation in the vicinity of that community resulted in the recovery of the tractor-trailer, authorities said. The vehicle was found Saturday near the home of Frank Falanga, it was reported.

BCI Investigators W. E. Wiedemann and Joseph Ventriglia of the Kingston zone headquarters and uniformed troopers from the Highland station accompanied Investigator Wachtel to Marlboro and subsequent investigation resulted in the arrests of the four men.

After lengthy questioning by the BCI, the defendants were processed by state police and later booked on the charges involving the possession of allegedly stolen property.

Kearney Detectives Due
Kearney authorities were notified late Saturday that the truck had been located and the four men had been taken into custody. Kearney detectives were expected to come here to question the defendants.

Because the stolen rig had been driven from one state to another, local authorities notified the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and agents from that agency reportedly will take part in the inquiry which will be continued.

The name of the owner of the truck and cargo was not immediately available, troopers at Kingston said. The tractor-trailer reportedly was worth upwards of $20,000.

REJECTS PROPOSAL — Black militant James Forman meets with Riverside Church's pastor, Dr. Ernest F. Campbell (R), during news conference after Sunday services in New York City. Forman stressed his respect and appreciation for Dr. Campbell's role "in the consideration given in the last week," even though Forman rejected the pastor's proposal for donations of a part of the church income to the country's disadvantaged. After reading the statement, Forman walked in to sit in the front pew. He had been under court order prohibiting him from disrupting services as he did last Sunday. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

City Mishaps Injure Four

By WALTER S. CLARK

KINGSTON — Four persons were injured in motor vehicle accidents investigated by city police, and several others were hurt in highway mishaps over the week investigated by area authorities. Removal of a stop sign on Maiden Lane at Clinton Avenue by some unknown person on Sunday, contributed to a two-car collision at 7:19 p.m., according to police. The cars were operated by Nicholas Delaura, 41, of 279 Blair Avenue, the Bronx and William Moser, 22, of Rt. 1, Box 128, Saugerties. Elizabeth Moser, 43, complained of head injuries and said she would see her own physician.

Car Hits Pole

At 5:30 a.m. Sunday, George

M. Armstrong, 30, of 18 Spruce Street, was injured when his car went out of control and hit a utility pole on Delaware Avenue at Moore Street. He told police he was lighting a cigarette when his lighter dropped in his lap and as he reached for it he lost control of the vehicle. Two men were injured shortly before 9:30 p.m. Sunday when the car in which they were riding went out of control and sideswiped a utility pole on Hasbrouck Avenue near Foxhall Avenue. Johnny Watkins, 40, of 89 South Manor Avenue, told police he was driving his car when headlights of an oncoming vehicle blinded him and he lost control. Watkins and a passenger, Sam Dismuke, 58, of 15 West Strand, were treated at Kingston Hospital for injuries to the nose and mouth. Albert Maze, 50, of Melville, was injured Saturday afternoon when a tractor-trailer he was driving went out of control on Route 28 at Stony Hollow and hit a tree. He was taken to Kingston Hospital by Doctors' Ambulance and treated for head and chest injuries. Five persons were injured at 9:45 a.m. Sunday when a car in which they were riding crashed into an abutment near the toll booth at the Saugerties interchange on the State Thruway. Trooper Jerry Pine reported the vehicle was operated by Girolano Turano,

Rocky In Mexico On Fact Tour

MEXICO CITY (UPI)—Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller conferred today with Mexican foreign trade officials in what government sources said would produce a series of complaints about U.S. trade relations. Rockefeller arrived in Mexico Sunday on a Latin American fact-finding tour that will take him to practically every Latin American nation except Cuba on behalf of President Nixon. Rockefeller spent an hour with President Gustavo Diaz Ordaz and a joint statement said Diaz Ordaz insisted Mexico be given favored treatment in U.S. trade relations. Reports from other Latin American nations Rockefeller will visit indicated they, too, would demand better deals in selling their products in the United States. The New York governor was meeting today with the National Foreign Trade Council which includes six cabinet members. The meeting with Diaz Ordaz was the first session of a mission that will be divided into four trips. Rockefeller will submit a report to President Nixon in July. The report is supposed to form the basis for "new policies" in U.S. relations with Latin America, Rockefeller said. Rockefeller and his group leave Tuesday for Guatemala and continue through El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica and Panama, returning home May 19. "Latin American countries want a more agile and fairer trade with the United States," Diaz Ordaz told Rockefeller. Diaz said he meant: "A just and stable price in U.S. markets for our raw materials, semi-manufactured goods and the chance of unilateral or multilateral help, when necessary, especially for the relatively lesser developed nations."

Diaz Ordaz said the United States is Mexico's chief buyer and seller while Mexico is the United States' fifth most important customer. "I bring no simple answers, no easy slogans," Rockefeller said. "New U.S. policies may grow out of this mission but they do not arrive with it."

Science Shrinks Painful Hemorrhoids Stops Itch—Relieves Pain Finds Way That Both Relieves Pain and Shrinks Piles In Most Cases

New York, N.Y. (Special): Science has found a special formula with the ability, in most cases—to shrink hemorrhoids, stop itching and relieve pain. In case after case doctors proved, while gently relieving pain, actual reduction (shrinkage) took place. The secret is Preparation H®. There is no other formula for hemorrhoids like it. Preparation H also soothes irritated tissues and helps prevent further infection. In ointment or suppository form.

3 Drug Arrests in Dutchess

AMENIA, N.Y. (AP) — Three New Hampshire teen-agers were charged with drug violations Sunday by State Police, who said narcotics and narcotic implements were found in their possession.

The three, Clinton Crowder, 18, Thomas Goupil, 16, and James Haywood, 17, all from Laconia, were held overnight in Dutchess County Jail in lieu of $2,000 bail each.

They were charged with criminal possession of dangerous drugs and possession of narcotic implements.

State Police said they were arrested on Route 22 near this Dutchess County town when a trooper, stopping their car for a routine traffic check, saw a bag quantity of pills, according to State Police from the Dover Plains substation. It contained marijuana and a

9 Arrested For Trespassing

A camping trip on town property in the Big Deep area off Route 212 Sunday afternoon, was interrupted when police arrested nine persons on charges of trespassing. They were later fined $10 each after pleading guilty before Town Justice E. C. Leaycraft.

Senate Joust Starts Today On Closing 59 Job Sites

WASHINGTON (UPI) —The Senate opened a Democrats vs. Republicans joust today over President Nixon's order to close 59 Job Corps centers.

At issue is a "sense of the Senate" resolution criticizing the closing which asks the President to delay his order pending congressional action. Democrats on the Labor and Public Welfare Committee rammed the resolution out onto the Senate floor with a party-line vote.

The Senate took up the resolution in a debate expected to last two days.

Fearing embarrassment for the administration, Sens. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., and Winston L. Prouty, R-Vt., have drafted a substitute resolution. The substitute says it is the sense of the Senate there be no net reduction in manpower training opportunities until those presently enrolled in the camps scheduled for closing are given other opportunities for training.

This, to Sens. Alan Cranston, D-Calif., and Gaylord Nelson, D-Wis., is not satisfactory. Cranston is the author of the original Democratic resolution, and Nelson, as chairman of the manpower and poverty subcommittee, will handle the measure on the floor.

Democrats also contended the Javits-Prouty resolution is redundant. They said Secretary of Labor George P. Shultz has already promised to find other training opportunities for the youths displaced by the closings.

Republicans contend the Job Corps camps—a keystone of President Johnson's war on poverty—are too costly for what they accomplish; that the dropout rate is too high; and that training frequently does not fit the graduates for the employment.

Republicans also were reported ready to spring ammunition about alleged immorality at Job Corps camps. Reports have already been leaked about rape, homosexuality and drug abuse at a number of camps.

Fish on Environment

A House Resolution calling for the establishment of a Standing Committee on the Environment, has been introduced by Rep. Hamilton Fish Jr. (28-N.Y.)

It was announced today. The Resolution, if approved by Congress, would establish a committee with the charge to study and evaluate all laws introduced in Congress dealing with the environment.

"Because of the steadily growing problems of air and water pollution, solid waste disposal, use of pesticides, and aquatic pollution, I feel such a Standing Committee of the House will prove invaluable in the future," Congressman Fish said. Congressman Fish was joined by a number of other Congressmen in co-sponsoring the proposed Resolution, originated by Rep. Bortzman of Colorado. "The question is not that either the Executive Branch or Congress has been blind to the growing problems of environmental control," the Congressman explained. "It is just that I believe the time has been reached when the need for the establishment of a committee to deal specifically with these problems has been reached."

Sharp Contrast in Senate

Expect House Breeze for ABM

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon's Safeguard ABM system is expected to breeze through the House, with leaders of both parties giving it their full support in marked contrast to the opposition mounted against it by key Democrats in the Senate.

Many Critics, But . . . There are, to be sure, many ABM critics in the House. But they acknowledge privately the controversial antiballistic missile program cannot be defeated in the House so long as both Republican and Democratic leaders stand firmly behind it.

The events of last July point up, as nothing else can, how effectively Democratic leaders can influence party policy.

On the afternoon of July 11, Speaker John W. McCormack, D-Mass., rose from his seat on the House floor and made his way to the rostrum to defend the Cheyenne helicopter.

The 77-year-old McCormack, a veteran of 40 years in Congress, all but admitted he didn't know anything about the pros and cons of the Cheyenne—a superfast, heavily armed chopper the Army has been trying to build for four years with mixed success.

But he told the House he was going to vote against an amendment to delete funds to start buying the helicopter because, when it came to military questions, he would stick with the "experts" and that when it came to the nation's defense, one should "err on the side of strength."

The amendment was soundly defeated.

Other Reasons While party leadership appears a vital factor in the apparent easy victory for the ABM in the House, there are other reasons for the ease with which it is being accepted.

"Generally speaking, I think it's because of a more conservative orientation of the House," says Rep. Lucien Nedzi, D-Mich., one of the leaders of the anti-ABM block. "I think House members are more easily intimidated by our Armed Forces Committee than the Senate is of theirs."

Sen. Charles Goodell, R-N.Y., until last year a member of the House, attaches great significance to the fact a House member represents only one district while a Senator represents an entire state.

Opposed as a Senator While in the House, representing a relatively conservative district, Goodell showed no antimilitary traits. Now, as a senator, he is adamantly opposed to the Safeguard system, apparently recognizing that he will need some of New York City's big liberal vote for re-election in 1970.

Although ABM opponents concede they have lost the battle in the House, they are encouraged by indications it will be the most closely fought military issue there in years.

Both sides now estimate about 100 out of the 434 members will vote against Safeguard but the headcounting has only just begun. The final figure might be considerably higher if the opposition forces pick up more momentum.

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Soviet nuclear attack on the United States by 1975 could wipe out perhaps 90 per cent of the U.S. strategic missile force, according to the Pentagon's research chief.

Dr. John S. Foster Jr. made the estimate Sunday—the first time the Pentagon has done so publicly. He said the possibility of such a missile loss is the reason President Nixon wants to build an antiballistic missile (ABM) system to protect the nation's missile installations.

The United States has had a land-based force of 1,000 Minutemen and 54 Titan intercontinental ballistic missiles (ICBM) all capable of carrying nuclear warheads across the world. Foster predicted that "fewer than 100" of these ICBMs would survive a Soviet attack by 1975.

Foster, director of defense research and engineering, based the probable losses on an intelligence assessment the Soviet Union would be able to build 500 SS9 ICBMs by 1975. Each SS9 could carry three warheads for a total of 1,500 warheads. The Soviets already have more than 200 SS9s and has experimented with triple warheads.

"... If in 1975 the Soviets have 500 SS9s and three warheads on each, they will have 1,500 warheads that could be directed against the 1,000 Minutemen, and I believe that there is a reasonable calculation that would indicate that fewer than 100 Minutemen would survive," Foster said in an interview.

The ABM is designed to intercept and destroy incoming missiles before they reach the silos where the U.S. ICBMs are stored.

Foster did not estimate how much damage the 100 surviving Minutemen might be able to do, assuming they all worked and hit their targets. But Pentagon officials believe such a small number would not provide sufficient deterrent—that is, the probable loss to the Soviet Union if it initiated an attack would not be great enough to dissuade it from taking that initiative.

David Packard, the deputy Defense Secretary, previously estimated the United States would have to make several hundred Minutemen survive any attack.

Foster said, as Packard had before that the ABM should not be postponed for a year or two as some of its opponents are urging.

Poughkeepsie Man Critical; Fireman Hurt, Back on Duty

POUGHKEEPSIE — A 29-year-old city resident of this city is in critical condition in Vassar Hospital with burns suffered in a three-story house fire early this morning. Aldo Rossi was rushed to the hospital after being rescued from his third floor apartment by firemen. Fire officials said Rossi was the only person known to be in the building at the time of the blaze.

They said the blaze broke out 11:45 p. m. Sunday and burned until past 2 a. m. this morning. Another, but smaller, blaze erupted less than a block away while the men battled the apartment flames at 14 Mt. Carmel Place.

One of Rossi's rescuers also was injured in the fire, but officials said he was back on duty today. Fireman Charles O'Hern, who assisted in getting the injured apartment dweller out, apparently fell through a hole in the third floor of the building and injured his back and left leg, it was noted. The cause of the blaze is under investigation. The building is owned by John Sardi Sr. who resides next door to the gutted property.

Officials said more than half the building was damaged along with three automobiles parked in an attached garage. Waterous reported the man had either jumped or fallen from a second story window before he cut himself with pieces of broken glass.

Because of indications that Matlin had attempted to take his life, Dr. Vernon Link, county health officer, was notified. Waterous said, "The investigation is continuing. The call to police was made from wounds of the groin, legs and the big toe on his right foot."

Graver called for Chief Waterous for assistance and Doctor's Ambulance was summoned.

Chief William Waterous said afternoon reporting a man was trying to take his life at the Tannery Brook Road address. Officer Warren Graver investigated and on arrival he reported finding Matlin nude in the cellar of the house and bleeding from wounds of the groin, legs and the big toe on his right foot.

Graver called for Chief Waterous for assistance and Doctor's Ambulance was summoned.

Tonight, showers and thunderstorms are expected in Northern California and from the southern Rockies to the western portions of Texas and also in southern Florida. Shower activity will be noted in most of the northeast. Sunny to partly sunny skies will occur elsewhere. Cold temperatures are forecast over the upper half, while cool readings will be expected for the remainder of the nation. Minimum temperature forecast includes: Atlanta 45, Boston 43, Chicago 40, Cleveland 35, Denver 46, Duluth 33, Ft. Toll-Free Telephone For Southern Ulster

POUGHKEEPSIE A large portion of the southern tier of Ulster County will be included in the proposed Mid-Hudson Telephone Metroplan, which will significantly expand toll-free calling in the Mid-Hudson Valley region.

Recently the Public Service Commission ruled that the first portion of the 160,000 station Metroplan may be instituted as soon as the New York Telephone Company is prepared to offer optional message unit rates service for subscribers desiring it. Step I in the establishment of the Mid-Hudson Metroplan will combine nine exchanges of New York Telephone Company and two exchanges of Sylvan Lake Telephone Company in Dutchess County into a single toll-free calling area.

Name Frederic Holcomb Jr. To Head Mental Health

ROSENDALE Election of officers and the board of directors highlighted the annual dinner and membership meeting of the Ulster County Association for Mental Health, recently at Williams Lake Hotel.

The new slate, headed by Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Jr. of Kingston as president, includes Harold N. Larsen, Stone Ridge, vice president; Mrs. Jerome Hurd, Clintonville, secretary; Mrs. Frieda H. Dingee, Kingston, assistant secretary; William J. Fitzgibbon, Kingston, treasurer and Charles R. Eickhorn Jr., Woodstock, assistant treasurer.

Others elected to serve on the executive committee included Mrs. William A. Krum, Kingston; Mrs. Albert S. Kerr, New Paltz; Charles L. McKendrick, Wallkill, retiring president and Dr. Emeline P. Hayward, Kingston, ex-officio member.

The directors include: Two year term: Mrs. Constance Beckwith, Mrs. Theodore Rhinebeck P-TA

A special program will be presented by the Rhinebeck PTA from 7 to 9:30 p.m. May 15 in the high school gym.

Entitled "A Night of the Arts," the program will include an art show by children of both the Chancellor Livingston School and the Central School, and a dance performance by the members of the high school modern dance club.

The PTA will also hold installation of its new officers: Mrs. Eugene Riordan, president; Mrs. John Heller, vice president; Mrs. Vernon Ware, treasurer; and Mrs. Lawrence Hagen, Northern Dutchess director of the Taconic District PTA, will be the installing officer.

Maxwell Knapp, high school audio-visual teacher retiring this June after 40 years service, will be honored by the PTA.

Donations from the public will be appreciated, and refreshments will be served after the program.

Fined $15

WOODSTOCK George Neltzer, 22, of New York City, picked the wrong place to take a nap when he climbed into an antique wagon at Louis Lewis' antique shop on Mill Hill Road early Saturday night.

Lewis complained to town police and officers Charles Wolven and Edward Snyder investigated. They arrested Neltzer on a charge of criminal trespass and arraigned him before Town Justice C. E. Learycraft. The defendant pleaded guilty and was fined $15 or five days in the county jail.

In lieu of payment of the fine he was committed.

sion of the New York Telephone exchanges at Clintondale, Clinton Corners, Cornwall, Esopus, High Falls, Highland, Hyde Park, Kerhonkson, Kingston, Marlboro, Milton, Newburgh, New Paltz, Rosendale and Stanfordville.

When Step II is completed, toll-free calling will be available to exchanges with 20 miles of each other for flat customer rates.

During the investigation of the plan, objections were raised on the part of many subscribers who make relatively little use of telephone service who do not want the full benefits of the expanded toll-free calling area with the corresponding rate increase.

To meet these objections and at PSC insistence, New York Telephone offered to make available a message rate service for individual line subscribers desiring it.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, MAY 12, 1969

All the Loopholes

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills has called the House Ways and Means Committee to order for the stated purpose of drafting the tax reform bill he hopes the House will pass by August. With Senate concurrence, it could become law by January 1.

Since Mills also has announced it will be a sweeping bill covering all the tax loopholes, he has put himself in competition with President Nixon. He submitted what he called the beginning of his tax reforms with more to come before the year ends.

In three days of hearings, Mills extracted all the ideas the U.S. Treasury has gathered on the subject, from Secretary David Kennedy, Under Secretary Charles E. Walker and Assistant Secretary Edwin Cohen.

The first order of business, Mills announced, would be a crack down on abuses by tax-exempt foundations. This is a field the Nixon Administration had not touched upon. It has been the subject of many hearings by various committees of the House which are exercised over the uses to which tax-exempt foundation funds are put. A tax on these vast funds would raise considerable revenue.

Another virgin tax field already cited by the Administration is against tax benefits for corporate mergers that are paid for with complex securities, a method utilized by some of the new diversified conglomerate companies. Since these mergers are already under attack by the Justice Department, and also are under investigation by Congress, withholding tax benefits from them could add the last straw that could deter their formation.

The Administration's tax reform package would exempt poor families from virtually all federal income taxes and insure that the wealthy paid taxes on at least 50 per cent of presently tax-free incomes. Mills indicated that his committee not only will go along, but will search out all other loopholes. The atmosphere is right for plugging all the loopholes there are.

How to Curb Crime

It seems strange for representatives of eight cities to go to New York to learn how to curb crime. New York is no showcase for crime prevention, but the National Urban Coalition knew of some things New York is doing about the crime problem and thought these ideas would be useful elsewhere.

Two years ago, Mayor John V. Lindsay formed the Criminal Justice Coordinating Council to try to improve the way law enforcement dealt with crime. It includes the Mayor, the Police Commissioner, the city's five District Attorneys (one for each of the five counties that make up the big city), judges, correction officials and private citizens.

The council has embarked on a variety of anticrime projects. These range from having detectives teach businessmen how to foil burglars, to devising a new pre-arrestment processing unit that has greatly increased the number of hours policemen can patrol the streets. M. Carl Holman, vice president of the Coalition, says no other city in the country has embarked on such "broadly comprehensive planning to improve the system of criminal justice."

Peter Velde, associate director of the Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, who attended the briefing sessions, said, "The council has done some truly innovative and pioneering work and is chipping away at one of the most complicated and difficult areas of government. That is not to say, of course, that the Council is going to solve the problem overnight."

For instance, there is a program to find jobs for young people after they have been arrested but before they have been convicted and sent to prison. There are a number of projects to reduce court delays and speed justice. There is a clubhouse for the court employment program and an infirmary on the Bowery for derelict alcoholics.

At least, New York is trying to improve the performance of police, courts and correction agencies. Other cities can learn from the big city.

That the United States is the common enemy is shown wherever Communists feel the heat of this country. For instance, now that Cambodia's Prince Sihanouk plans to restore diplomatic relations with this country, native Communist-led guerrillas have intensified attacks on the Cambodian government. That should arouse his spunk, not halt him.

New York State University college at Oneonta, N. Y., turned down a demand by 20 of the 55 Negro students for an allowance of $35 a week. The demand supports the idea these students looked upon college as a work place, not as a place to gain a higher education to prepare for a more rewarding life.

Already, there are second generation welfare clients but the proposal for a guaranteed annual wage is bound to make dependence permanent. With no reason to work so long as income is guaranteed, dependence would expand, taxes to pay for it would rise, and inflation would eat into it. There are too many such plans put forward by social workers for the good of the nation as a whole.

David Lawrence Says

Hanoi Aware of Pressure For Quick Settlement

WASHINGTON — What would be regarded as an "honorable peace" in Vietnam? This question comes up often as the Paris talks drag on. For it is evident that the North Vietnamese believe that they can get more and more concessions if they prolong the negotiations. The Communists can, for instance, let down on the fighting for a while — as they are doing now — but resume it as soon as they have reorganized their forces.

There is, of course, plenty of talk about a possible peace agreement. Already predictions are being made here and abroad that the South Vietnamese will take over the burden of the fighting and enable many of the American troops to be withdrawn. But much of this is wishful thinking.

The North Vietnamese are determined to prolong the peace talks so as to get what they want. They seek primarily a means whereby a so-called "coalition" government can be set up in South Vietnam to include the Communists. Theoretically, the United States would be in the position of having agreed to an "honorable peace." Then, whatever ensued could be blamed on the Communists. Many people in this country may not recall what happened in 1946 when the United States sought to bring about a "coalition" government in China with Communist participation. Neither side would agree to this. American aid to the Chinese Nationalists was virtually cut off, and in 1949 the Communists gained control over all of mainland China.

The Saigon government has been reluctant to agree to any "coalition" with the Communists in the South. They fear that the latter, with the help of the North Vietnamese, the Red Chinese and the Soviets, will take over South Vietnam. The end result would be that South Vietnam would become virtually a Communist satellite or colony.

The Hanoi government is well aware that pressure is being exerted upon the Nixon administration to settle the war at almost any price. This is being advocated not just by groups participating in street "demonstrations," but in outright expressions by some members of the House and Senate. Two prominent Republican Senators are urging a "unilateral withdrawal" by the United States. It means these men are willing to have American and allied forces pulled out of South Vietnam without requiring the North Vietnamese to do the same.

These critics seem to take it for granted that the American people are not concerned with what happens at the peace table but are interested only in the idea that the American troops must come home, leaving the South Vietnamese to their fate.

But the truth is that the future of Asia is at stake. To give the Communists more and more power in Southeast Asia will merely increase the possibility that a series of crises involving the United States will develop. The South Vietnamese, of course, are being pressed to make compromises, and there are some Congressmen who are saying openly that the Saigon government must grant more and more concessions.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

My family life may be interesting only insofar as it can be measured beside Yours. Next week, Kelly and I will celebrate our eighth wedding anniversary—a matter of no consequence. It has been like two mountain freshets meeting and melding into one deep and solemn river.

Those dear friends who said it wouldn't last are invited to stop by for a drink and an exchange of pleasant lies. Happiness is an unreal and feverish emotion. We took deep aim on contentment and that's what we have.

We swapped four daughters around — her two became mine; my big ones became Kelly's — the only time she weeps is when four Mother's Day cards arrive in the same mail. She is nine years older than Virginia Lee, an unusual motherhood.

My father was opposed to this marriage. So were most of my relatives. The indictment never found sound on their tongues; it was in their eyes. She is 21 years younger than I and the phones were busy with gabbles. The Kelly family was busy too — what could Betty Jane see in a fifty-year-old writer?

Fortunately, love is an illogical commodity. The seeker of love never finds it. The patient hunter waits for love to overtake him. When he is engulfed by it, the population of the world drops from three billion four hundred million to one. She stands before you and you look and swallow mutely. I had experienced love before and had a long marriage to a pretty dark-haired lady, frightened of everything, who was destined to die while I was on a ship at sea. It was good sense on my part. I thought at the time, to tell myself that the deep endearment occurs but once to the lucky people, and never to the rest. There would be no second marriage.

At no time did I see myself as a "catch" because I have been in the business of assessing human beings for many years and all I could see in a full-length mirror was a short graying man with the ironclad features of a bulldog. I had no face to sell to the world; no personality; no trade — just a man who juggled words without dropping them.

One night I sat in a car with Kelly. It was chilly enough to keep the heater on. As nearly as I can remember, my proposal of marriage went like this:

"You don't want to marry me. Now wait a minute; don't interrupt. You are young and beautiful, a highly sensitive person, I suspect. Think of it this way: according to all the life insurance statistics, I will leave 21 years before you. Maybe more. So you see, you are almost a widow before we shake hands."

Besides, I'm really and truly sick of the PTA. I can't go through it once more. Children need two parents and I can tell you that if I get into the act with the kids, I go all the way. I have to know everything about everything and I make roaring bellows in sounds over everything from homework to the length of a hem."

I took a deep breath. "Do you understand?" I said. She

All this is read in Hanoi and stiffens the backs of its negotiators in Paris. Indeed, there are signs that the debate inside the United States has had more to do with the course of the peace negotiations than anything else. The South Vietnamese recognize that what is being demanded of them is a virtual surrender or at least a "settlement," even if it permits the Hanoi government to take control of that country.

The Saigon government is hopeful that it can make its position clear when Secretary of State Rogers soon visits Vietnam. The fundamental question, however, is not what is written in the peace agreement, but how much trust can be placed in any Communist pledge to permit a free election to take place. The manner in which the pact is carried out will determine whether all the sacrifices made by America and its allies will prove to have been in vain.

Whether or not an "honorable peace" has been attained is something which it may actually take two to five years to find out. For, after the United States withdraws entirely from Vietnam, will the military power of this country be immediately available again to the Saigon government when Hanoi and its political arm in South Vietnam, the National Liberation Front, begin to turn a "coalition" government into a Communist regime? The Communists are betting that America will not once more help the cause of self-determination — the right of every people to choose their own government.

Drew Pearson Says Nixon Rules Politics Out Of Justice Abe Fortas Incident

WASHINGTON — There's a difference of opinion inside the Nixon administration regarding the investigation of Justice Abe Fortas.

After the story about the $20,000 payment from the Louis Wolfson Foundation broke, President Nixon admonished Republican congressional leaders privately not to exploit the incident.

"It is necessary to avoid partisanship in this," he said at a White House strategy meeting. He indicated that it was up to the Supreme Court to discipline its own members. House GOP Leader Gerald Ford of Michigan replied that some Congressmen are beyond party control and that anyone can introduce an impeachment resolution. He assured President Nixon, however, that there was "no inclination by either party to go ahead" with impeachment proceedings.

Carrying out Nixon's idea, Sen. Everett Dirksen made a statement on Capitol Hill that Fortas had done nothing illegal.

Attorney General John Mitchell told the GOP leaders that the Justice Department is following the developments. He indicated that there may be other facts that haven't yet been disclosed, but he didn't hint what those facts might be. The hints probably resulted from the fact that some of Mitchell's staff have been like an overzealous bird dog in jumping into the Fortas case.

It was the Justice Department which cooperated with Life magazine in running down some of the angles of the Fortas-Louis Wolfson relationship.

The Justice Department had also tipped off President Nixon that the story was going to break, so that he knew about the case at least two weeks in advance. In fact he probably knew about it on April 22, on which date the Nixons gave their formal dinner for retiring chief Justice Earl Warren. All the Supreme Court members attended the dinner.

The President was extremely gracious toward everyone that evening, including Justice Fortas.

One day before the story broke, Justice Fortas himself attended the annual Mental Health Ball at the Shoreham Hotel and was both gracious and nonchalant. If he knew that all hell was about to break over his head the next day — as he must have — he did not show it. He danced almost every dance, to raise money for mental health.

Persecuting Law Firm
The chief difference inside the Nixon administration comes not over an opinion on Fortas's conduct in temporarily accepting the Wolfson Foundation fee — there is unanimity on this subject — but over the investigation of the former Fortas law firm — Arnold and Porter.

Some attorneys inside the administration and many outside regard this as pure persecution, especially since Fortas left his law firm two years before the incidents now being investigated occurred.

Despite this, the Justice Department has now hastily summoned a federal grand jury in Toledo even though Assistant Attorney General Fred Vinson, Jr., son of the late Chief Justice Vinson, had investigated the charge of withheld evidence and dropped it.

The Arnold and Porter law client involved was the Donovan Steel and Wire Company of Toledo, charged with antitrust violations and links with the Mafia. The company had been using fake invoices.

When the Justice Department subpoenaed the company's "invoices," it did not clarify whether it wanted the fake or real invoices. Paul S. Berger, junior partner in the Arnold and Porter firm, decided it was his business to protect his client, not define the government's case for it; so he advised the Donovan firm to answer the subpoena with the real invoices, not the fakes.

Finally, in June 1968, the Justice Department issued a more specific subpoena and the Donovan firm produced 1,000 fake invoices. It was convicted. All this took place long after Justice Fortas left his law firm.

The case is being hotly debated in legal circles, where it is the contention of most lawyers that it is the job of the government to be specific when it issues subpoenas, and not the job of private lawyers either to read the government's mind or do legal work for it.

Many also believe that to call a federal grand jury and reopen the Toledo case at this late date is persecution which can turn sentiment in Fortas's favor.

Judicial Ethics

Joseph Borkin, former Justice Department antitrust attorney and author of the book "The Corrupt Judge," states that the law regarding the conduct of federal judges is ambiguous. There is no law prohibiting a judge from engaging in private practice or taking a fee, so long as he does not practice against the United States.

The law is clear that he cannot take a bribe. Also, he cannot be removed except by impeachment, which has to be initiated by the House of Representatives. Otherwise the law is vague, says Borkin.

As a result of Borkin's book on judicial malpractice, Sen. Estes Kefauver of Tennessee introduced a bill setting up a code of ethical conduct for federal judges. It was the kind of bill which Sen. Dirksen and Rep. Ford, the GOP leaders, recommended last week. However, it died in committee.

Recently Sen. Joe Tydings, the young Maryland Democrat, working with Borkin, introduced a new and forthright bill, stronger than the Kefauver bill, clarifying judicial conduct. If Republican leaders Dirksen and Ford get behind it, it has a good chance of passing.

Convention Setup Must Be Demo Party Reform Target

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

NEA Washington Correspondent

The vagueness and emotionalism which engulfed the first open deliberations of the Democratic reform committee do not augur well for the development of realistic party reforms for 1972.

The most militant types seem to think that the most urgent necessity is some sort of cleansing verbal denunciation of all the events which surrounded the traumatic 1968 convention in Chicago.

Those who want to put that affair behind them are not too clear about where to begin repair and renovation.

One dash of realism that all reformers, moderate and militant, need to have thrown in their faces:

In the strict physical sense, measured by numbers of bodies, Democratic conventions have too much "participatory democracy," not too little. They have become unwieldy monstrosities with a built-in potential for chaos and near-disaster.

When the late John Kennedy was nominated at Los Angeles, he needed a majority of 1,521 delegate votes. By 1964 this total had skyrocketed to 2,316. Despite warnings of the unworkability of this number, it was increased to 2,622 in 1968.

When half-votes and alternates are figured in, 5,611 persons are considered to have been officially eligible to attend Chicago.

By contrast, Republican convention delegate totals have been held within narrow variation — 1,331 in 1960, 1,308 in 1964, 1,333 in 1968.

At Democratic conventions, then, the mere physical movement of delegates and alternates, not to mention other officially qualified persons, is incredibly difficult. Over-crowding of aisles and other convention hall space is assured. Authorities ordered to keep aisles open have a choice between a shrug of hopelessness and a shoving contest that can quickly slip into "overreaction."

When the problem is heightened by a heavy flow of newsmen, television crews, and some unauthorized persons on the convention floor, the potential for some kind of human explosion is very high.

But even this is not the whole of the matter from the strictly physical viewpoint. The fact is that for years the Democrats have been mismanaging the admission of the public to their conventions.

At Atlantic City in 1964, Lyndon Johnson's lieutenants so feared empty space in that cavernous convention hall that they overissued tickets by the thousands. On the second night, this tactic produced the worst human traffic jam outside a hall in convention history.

The hall's main doors had to be shut early, before dozens and dozens of delegates and other official persons could get in. The human flow, turned away from the door, met another surge of people still moving toward the hall — and chaos reigned on the boardwalk.

This kind of official ticket fraud is, of course, matched by the issuance of fraudulent tickets by the partisans of a particular candidate, by local bosses like Mayor Richard Daley of Chicago, or by mere adventurers determined to get into the hall.

Daley's packing of the International Amphitheater at Chicago was so arrogant that he even preempted a large reserved press area. It made a hypocritical charade out of the otherwise justifiable — if often brutally discourteous — precautions of suspicious convention ticket takers.

But there was no complaint from party liberals when Daley's predecessor, Edward J. Kelly, packed the hall for Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1944. Nor did they voice indignation when partisans of Adlai Stevenson used a ticket-relay gimmick to pack the Sports Arena in Los Angeles on balloting night in 1960.

Party reforms aimed at assuring fairer, more balanced representation for all candidates and all viewpoints may do little to improve the Democratic party's tarnished image if it does not take first things first and devise a nominating process which produces a physically manageable convention.

Both Races More Satisfied With Jobs, Income Than 20 Years Ago

PRINCETON, N.Y., May 12

The last 20 years have seen a tremendous improvement for both whites and Negroes in terms of satisfaction with jobs and income, but the gap between the races remains wide.

The latest Gallup survey shows 88 per cent of whites expressing satisfaction with their jobs today compared to 76 per cent of Negroes. The comparable figures in 1949 were 69 per cent for whites and 55 per cent for Negroes.

In terms of family income, 77 per cent of whites currently express satisfaction, compared to 64 per cent for Negroes. The comparable figures in 1949 were 60 per cent for whites and 34 per cent for Negroes.

Housing Has Not Kept Pace
White people express far greater satisfaction with their housing today than in 1949, when the figure was 67 per cent.

But housing for Negroes has not kept pace with an improvement in jobs and income. Actually a smaller proportion of Negroes today (50 per cent) than in 1949 (59 per cent) say they are satisfied with their housing situation, undoubtedly a reflection in part of their inability to move out of increasingly crowded urban areas.

1963: Turning Point for Negroes
The improvement for white people in terms of satisfaction with jobs, income and housing came about almost entirely between 1949 and 1963. Little change has been noted since 1963, according to Gallup surveys taken at regular intervals.

For Negroes, on the other hand, the major strides in greater job and income satisfaction have come about since 1963, the year in which widespread civil rights demonstrations began. Little change was recorded between 1949 and 1963.

The following tables show the trend in satisfaction levels for both Negroes and whites regarding jobs, income and housing:

On the whole, would you say you are satisfied or dissatisfied with: The work you do? Your family income? Your housing situation?

Ed. note: Dr. Goldstone, 30, is an assistant professor of philosophy at the University of Maryland. One of the courses he teaches is called "The Philosophy of Violence," which he discusses below.

COLLEGE PARK, Md. —

(NEA) — When I first proposed a course on "The Philosophy of Violence," faculty committee eyebrows went up and thumbs went down.

It seemed my intentions were suspect. My colleagues feared that I planned (1) to circulate instructions on how to make Molotov cocktails or (2) to incite guerrilla warfare. I planned neither. Actually, ROTC classes and radical publications are much better at that sort of thing.

I wanted, rather, to help my students think clearly about violence: its causes and effects, what is being said about it and, finally, what is violence. With my colleagues' anxieties relieved. The course was sanctioned. Now 15 undergraduates take the course for credit and several former students also take part.

But the question remains valid: Why a course on violence?

The answer is twofold. First, there is the academic approach. Violence whether depicted in assassinations or riots or Vietnam or student militancy or police brutality or crime in the streets, is indisputably an important problem in our society. Therefore, our schools have an obligation to consider this social and political dilemma, just as schools must seek to understand other problems of life.

Second, there is the personal aspect. Most of my students as well as myself — are bothered by the question: "Should I be out there in the streets, too?" "Should I be out there in the streets, too?"

Others want to know whether there is justification for being drafted to fight in Vietnam.

These questions are sticky and must, of course, be solved individually.

The students are concerned with what, actually, is violence. To answer, it must first be determined who is committing what kind of action against whom. It is often said that institutions in our society, from college administrations to giant corporations to government agencies impose a quiet violence against underprivileged minorities. Spelled out, this is the assertion that economic exploitation, dehumanizing and irrelevant education, and unequal opportunity either are or should be regarded as violence.

An obvious reaction is that this is mere claptrap, that everyone knows the difference between knocking a man down and keeping him down. The first, it is said, is violence. The second, though admittedly unjust, is not violence.

Freeman Readers Write the Editor

The Assembly days of a Presidential term an opportunity. So let us seize it, not in fear, but in gladness and, riders on the earth together, let us go forward, firm in our faith, steadfast in our purpose, cautious of the dangers, but sustained by our confidence in the will of God and the promise of man."

Major Public Service

Editor, The Freeman: Many residents of Ulster County have written my office during the recent 1969 Legislative Session expressing approval and appreciation for my attempts to keep the general public informed on legislation pending in Albany and how I stand on the issues. It certainly is gratifying to receive such letters but I know a great deal of the credit goes to the Kingston Daily Freeman Editorial and News Reporting Staffs.

As a freshman legislator, I did not have time to set up a mailing list. Mailing lists, however, can only cover a limited number of homes due to financial limitations. I, therefore, decided to concentrate on mass media such as the Kingston Daily Freeman, which enjoys a tremendous circulation in the 99th Assembly District, to keep the public informed.

Due to the great cooperation of The Kingston Daily Freeman in covering the press releases issued by my office, I feel my job as Assemblyman has been made a great deal easier and, apparently, the general public feels it is well informed on the work of the 1969 Legislature.

In light of the above, I wish to take this opportunity to commend The Kingston Daily Freeman for what I consider a major public service contribution to the residents of Ulster County and the surrounding area. Today, more than ever before, there is an increasing need for objective and fair news reporting and cogent, incisive editorializing.

Your paper has disapproved of some of the positions I have taken, but in the tradition of honest and respected journalism, The Kingston Daily Freeman has printed my position accurately. For this I also commend The Kingston Daily Freeman and wish it continued success.

Very truly yours,

H. CLARK BELL, P.S. I might also add that the new format and layout makes the paper more lively and interesting to read.

Nixon: The First 100 Days

Editor, The Freeman

Richard Nixon is being a very cautious President so far. Perhaps too much so. He is trying to be peaceful with everybody, especially with Congress and the Press and he is giving members of the House a chance to relax a little after the hectic days of the Johnson administration. The people are giving him a chance, but some are saying that unless he starts to put through more programs his goodwill with the people will be running out.

He has closed the credibility gap but has done nothing so far to fulfill most of his campaign pledges. But his trip abroad, however, he has gained back a great deal of the country's lost goodwill. Relations with Russia are getting better continuously. But is he, like too many presidents putting our relations with other countries as the top priority. Instead of the problems in our own country.

But on the other hand, is 100 accurate judgment of the man, Nothing is totally accomplished overnight. Our country's problems cannot be cleared up in a short time. Perhaps not even in one or two terms.

Nixon, now that he is in office is not making any erratic promises he cannot keep. He is taking his time and working on good programs that will help our country, not just making foolish programs to keep those that are clamoring for programs quiet.

Near the end of his inaugural address, Nixon said one word which seems to set the theme of his administration. He said, "Our destiny offers, not the cup of despair, but the chalice of the first 100 days, nor the years of the Nixon Administration, for future historians who can accurately place these years in their place in the steps of American destiny.

New Ulster Academy Looks to 2nd Year

KINGSTON—Applications are now being accepted for the 1969-70 academic year. The new independent secondary school, which will be located at 105 Mary's Avenue, school, at 105 Mary's Avenue, Kingston.

Headmaster Raymond A. Nelson has scheduled an admissions examination for Saturday, May 24. Applications and information may be obtained and pre-admissions appointments set by contacting the school office.

The headmaster noted that an unofficial evaluation report had been received from a committee who visited the school recently to observe its operations. Members included William M. Dietel, principal of the Emma Willard School; Appleton A. Mason Jr., Executive Secretary of the New York State Association of Independent Schools; and Robert C. Mellow, Headmaster of the Scarborough School.

Their letter stated that the committee "wishes it compliment the trustees, headmaster and faculty of their vision and courage in creating Ulster Academy and for the success attained thus in the school's brief history. It appears to the committee that an enthusiastic and supporting group of trustees, and industrious and thoughtful headmaster and an involved, above-average faculty have combined to produce a school which is already functioning satisfactorily. The academic program is well-conceived, and there are indications that the student body is participating with increasing interest, determination and satisfaction."

Probe Asked Of Local Fire

KINGSTON—Fire officials called upon city detectives today to investigate the origin of a fire that heavily damaged the interior and roof of a one-story 4-stall building at the rear of 123 South Manor Avenue. The blaze was logged as incendiary at Central Fire Station.

Firemen responded to the alarm at 1:57 a. m. today and on arrival they found the entire interior of the structure owned by Mrs. Fred Bushnell heavily involved in fire.

Four 1½-inch hoses were immediately pressed into service as firefighters under command of Deputy Chief Glyn Southard battled the flames. Officials said the blaze originated in the south stall of the structure, burned across the other three car stalls and vertically to the roof.

It was necessary to rip away a section of roofing to get to the flames. The building was used as storage of material belonging to Mrs. Bushnell and a tenant. Much of the contents of the structure burned in the flames. Firemen reported back in service at 3:12 a. m.

Davis Deplores Hasty Action on '67 Sales Tax

KINGSTON—Burton C. Davis, Republican candidate for alderman-at-large, said today he will urge the Common Council and the mayor to investigate all aspects of any new tax to be levied on the residents of Kingston. He said, this unlike the procedure used by the 1967 Democratic administration.

Davis said, the mayor of the city said he wanted a sales tax for the city because he heard a rumor in Albany that the state would raise the state sales tax. We cannot ask the Common Council to approve additional taxes on the basis of rumors, he added.

The alderman-at-large candidate is in full agreement with his running-mate, mayoral candidate James Tyrrell, that taxes will be reduced under a new administration.

Davis pointed out that at the time the city sales tax was being considered, the city council approved the measure with three days notice. "The City Council, Democrat or Republican should spend more time on such important legislation," Davis said. While the sales tax passed within a three day period, an increase in the mayor's salary was lying around for seven months."

Davis said the state eventually raised the sales tax this year, but that does not eliminate the hasty action by the Common Council in 1967. "The speedy enactment of the sales tax in the city hurt our businessmen."

Davis concluded, Stanley London, then vice president of the Uptown Businessmen's Association deplored the tax and asked for fair competition for city merchants with county merchants. Again the Common Council should not be asked to take hasty action on such vital matters. The residents of the city at the same time, will not be faced with increased taxes under our (Tyrrell-Davis) administration.

Registration Deadline Set

KINGSTON—The Ulster County Board of Elections announced today that those persons who moved since last year and wish to have their enrollment transferred to their new address which will allow them to vote in the primary election, June 17, must come to the Board of Elections office before May 17. At that time they may also re-register from their new address to be eligible to vote in November this year.

Also, any person who turned 21 since last election day may come to the office and enroll so that they will be eligible to vote in the primary this year. All special enrollments or transfers must be made before May 17, by applying personally at the Board of Elections office, sixth floor, County Office Building.

If there are any questions regarding registration, enrollment, or voting procedures, residents are asked to call the Board of Elections office.

Pennsy Man Hurt in Crash

ACCORD—William Gilbert, 39, of Olyphant, Pa., was injured at 4:15 p. m. Friday, when the car in which he was riding hit a car parked in a service station lot on Route 209 north of here. Gilbert complained of back injuries.

State Police Sergeant Joseph Ellsworth of Ellenville said Peter Vacchino, 36, of Scranton, Pa., was driving the car along the highway and attempting to pass another vehicle when the second car started to make a left turn. Vacchino turned to the side of the road to avoid a collision but his car entered the lot and hit the parked vehicle.

100th Year Of Coastal Rail Marked

KINGSTON—The official message announcing to the president of the United States that the east and west coasts of the country were joined by rail, was recreated recently by Western Union, 100 years to the day the message was sent.

The recreated telegram is being delivered to President Richard Nixon at his Biscayne, Fla. home as part of the Golden Spike Centennial celebration held at Promontory Point, Utah, the place where the rails from the east and the west first met.

According to the Kingston office of Western Union, the original telegram was sent to President U.S. Grant at the White House, May 10, 1869. The historic message, then as now, was tapped out in Morse code over a telegraph key at Promontory Point.

Neumaier on Recruiter Ban: Consistent With Free Speech

By BRUCE KAUFMAN and TIM SCHUSTER

NEW PALTZ — President John J. Neumaier, State University College New Paltz, said on Thursday he believes his point of view that military recruiters should not come on campus is "completely reconcilable with the principle of free speech on campus."

In a statement originally prepared for the student newspaper, "The Oracle," published May 9, President Neumaier said he would keep the campus and area residents informed about his efforts to persuade other State University College presidents to review and change the present policy which requires that Armed Forces have access to DUNY campuses for military recruiting.

Dr. Neumaier, who assumed the New Paltz college presidency last September, said he would present a more detailed view of his position on military recruiting and freedom of speech at a later time.

Addressed Rally
The matter first came up on April 21, when Neumaier told a group of about 200 students, who were demonstrating against the appearance of four Armed Forces recruiters at the college, that he favored the halting of such recruiting.

Subsequently, there was some public criticism of his position voiced in the community, including a strongly worded article written by a columnist in a local newspaper.

In his statement, Neumaier explains why he spoke out on recruitment stating that "When one takes a stand on controversial issues, one must be prepared for various consequences, particularly if the stand can be interpreted as being 'unpopular.'"

Neumaier says that he "expressed his opposition to having military recruitment on college campuses" because he is opposed to the "American participation in the Vietnam war and the continuing disposition of the federal government to give military operations its highest fiscal priority."

Neumaier states that he accepted the responsibility for having military recruiters on campus, April 21, in accordance with the policy of the State University of New York, but that he intends to seek a review and change of that policy at the May 20 meeting with the Presidents of the SUNY campuses.

"I hope that I will be able to persuade others of the justice of my point of view, which I believe to be completely reconcilable with the principle of freedom of speech on the campus," he said.

In his statement, Neumaier indicates that his opposition to military recruiting does not conflict with free speech.

"While I am opposed passionately and intellectually to the war in Vietnam, I would insist that those Americans who feel that the killing of people in that country can be justified in terms of national self-interest be permitted to express such views," he says. "I would insist, also, that equal opportunity to propagate their views be given to opponents of what I consider to be an unfortunate illustration of man's propensity for self-destruction."

Neumaier also states that he upholds the right of others to attack his position, noting that one of the consequences of his action has been editorial discussion of his views in the press and on the radio.

In the statement, he makes reference to an article in the April 30 issue of the New Paltz Independent, which accused Neumaier of "abject acquiescence" to the demands of an "unlawful rabble" of anti-recruitment demonstrators and while at the same time, abdicating "his responsibility to his country."

"Such inconsistency of thought and interpenetration of expression seems designed to depict me as either an appeaser or supporter of violence, or both," he states. "When in fact I have consistently opposed violence for political ends."

"Nevertheless, it is very important to uphold the freedom of speech practiced in attacking my position and my person. I say this not as one who espouses a particular political ideology, but rather, as one who feels that his right to freedom of speech, including the advocacy of disallowing military recruitment on college campuses, can be preserved only if the same right of free speech is extended to those who may differ with him."

Tim Schuster
Neumaier promised to take whatever steps he could to assure the students that military recruiters would be kept off the campus.

The prospective methods of accomplishing this end were discussed by Assistant President Aaron Miller with the Kingston Freeman.

SUNY Chiefs Meet May 20
A meeting of State University presidents will be held May 20, at which time President Neumaier hopes to discuss the viability of his ideas with the Chancellors," said Miller.

Before every meeting of this nature each president sends in his thoughts for the agenda. These topics are then reviewed and the most pertinent are scheduled. Neumaier has already filed the topic of military recruitment.

"There are really three noted schools of thought on campus recruitment policies," said Miller. "One is the closed campus, this provides for no campus to recruiters."

"The second is the 'No' school, by which military, by corporations, or by recruiters wanted to cover a particular business. This college they could take a room in a nearby motel and serve individuals from the learning notice via the media that they process, and should be open just were available for interviews."

to academic processes."

"A second segment feels that an open campus should be the order. All recruiters for any purpose should be allowed to do their jobs at the university. They feel that the university should be open to any ideas, whatever their connotations, and not remain a cloistered haven for intellectuals."

Miller said that those students involved in the April 21 confrontation with what they call the "warmakers" are primarily party to the third school of thought.

This ideology holds to the tenet that the Vietnam conflict is morally unjustified, and holds the gigantic military complex largely responsible for this "moral wrong."

The third faction does not feel that a corporation recruiters should necessarily be banned from the campus, but that the representatives of military services "are abhorrent practitioners of warmaking."

This group was apparently the major moving force in the mass rally cited, which numbered about 100 active and 200 passive spectators. Tearing up military literature and engaging in emotional dialogue with the servicemen led to Dean William Sample's asking the recruiters to leave the campus prematurely in order to avoid violence.

Dr. Neumaier has stated that his personal sentiments lie with the third factions, and that he would like to see the recruiters banned from the New Paltz campus. He also warned students that proper channels would have to be utilized.

As of now in the State University system all campuses of colleges remain open to all recruitment. "The educational centers in Binghamton and Stony Brook have been granted one year bans to military recruiters by the Chancellors," Miller noted.

Would the rights of students interested in a military career be jeopardized by closing the campus to recruiters? "When recruitment whatever by the military, by corporations, or by recruiters wanted to cover a particular business. This college they could take a room in a nearby motel and serve individuals from the learning notice via the media that they process, and should be open just were available for interviews."

EDMUND M. DAPP

THEODORE BLANKSCHAN

KINGSTON Two scouters of Rip Van Winkle Council, Boy Scouts of America were recipients of the Silver Beaver Award at the recent scouters recognition dinner held at J. Watson Bailey school.

The awards are presented annually to scouters who over a period of years have given distinguished service to Scouting. The program was conducted by Robert C. Tremper, Silver Beaver Committee chairman.

The 1969 recipients are Edmund M. Dapp of Highland, scoutmaster of Troop 70, Highland and Theodore Blankschan of Kingston, cubmaster of Pack 9.

Dapp's record includes service as Pack 70 committeeman, Explorer Post 70 committeeman, brotherhood member of the Order of the Arrow and holder of several leadership training awards, including the Wood Badge. Dapp also served as assistant leader at the 1964 Valley Forge National Jamboree expedition leader of the 1966 Philmont Scout Ranch Trek and will serve as scoutmaster of the council delegation to the 7th National Jamboree this summer at Farragut State Park.

Blankschan was Pack 9 committeeman and cubmaster. He was also active on the Troop 9 committee and has served seven years at the council and district level leadership training and membership enrollment. Blankschan holds the Scouter's Key Training Award.

More than 150 scouters and guests attended the roast beef dinner served by the school lunch staff.

Kenneth Pangburn, council president served as master of ceremonies and introduced Joseph R. Klein, National Council representative, who was the guest speaker.

Richard Rioux, scoutmaster of Troop 103, Hurley was recognized for completing the Wood Badge Award requirements, the highest national training award. Edwin A. Tate of Saugerties conducted the ceremony.

No Transplant

HOUSTON (UPI)—Dr. Denton A. Cooley, a pioneer in heart transplant surgery, said in a speech Thursday it will be impossible to transplant a brain, now or in the next century. "A brain transplant is out of the question," he said. "I would be like trying to transfer the New York telephone system to Tokyo. There are too many things to hook up."

Saugerties Teachers on Budget Delay

SAUGERTIES negotiating table to work out arrangements on the two points they could not accept.

The Saugerties Board of Education accepted four of the fact-finders recommendations and rejected nine. Of 26 basic decisions the fact-finders had to make, the teachers team rejected three, while the Board of Education rejected 12.

The STA's negotiating team is hopeful that the Saugerties Board will order a re-assessment of the negative positions made by its negotiating team and the Superintendent of Schools, (Dr. Dexter O. Arnold), will send its team back to the negotiating table in a posture more conducive to good-faith bargaining. Further, the STA's team feels that a contract can be settled by June 10th, but only if the Board and its team adopt a more flexible attitude.

At a recent meeting of the Instructional Unit of the local school system, 119 out of 120 teachers voted to sustain the position of the STA negotiating team with respect to its stand on the fact-finders report.

"The teacher's team feels that the 378-300 vote for adjourning the budget meeting because contracts with the District's employees have not been bi-laterally negotiated and mutually agreed upon is not necessarily a mandate for the Board to take rectifying steps on its positions at impasse, but that the vote might be a very strong suggestion to do so."

School Lunch To Be Topic Of Paltz P-TA

The New Paltz High School PTA will hold its last general meeting of the year Tuesday, 8 p. m. in the school cafeteria.

The subject of an open lunch period for the student body will be the topic for discussion.

Since the school board has already been apprised of the ter, it is hoped that a parental consensus can be obtained to speed a solution. Mention has been made of a possible compromise whereby seniors alone would receive the privilege of leaving the school's premises during the lunch hour. Opinions will be heard at this meeting and those interested are urged to attend.

Election of PTA officers for the coming year will also take place, as will additional business concerning the selection of proper fields of endeavor for the giving of awards to deserving students.

Calm Money Market In Recycling Plan

BASEL, Switzerland (AP)—The central bankers said today they've agreed on a plan to recycle billions in speculative "hot money" out of West Germany and expect this to calm the world money market. But West Germany's Socialist party said its government's refusal to revalue the mark upward could lead to a new economic crisis in the country.

The chiefs of the non-Communist world's 11 leading central banks spent most of their monthly meeting in Basel trying to figure out how best to return to circulation an estimated $5 billion which speculators poured into West Germany in anticipation that the mark would be revalued.

ment at the end of the meetings early today, the bankers said they have been working on the "recycling" plan for months. Part of it includes short-term loans to such countries as France and Britain of the money they lost to Germany.

The central banks gave no details of what the West Germans plan to do to discourage more money coming into Germany because the mark is still the world's most attractive currency. Many bankers and traders still think the Bonn government will revalue, but they believe the action will be delayed until after the West German election Sept. 28.

Karl Blessing, president of the West German Federal Bank, said he wants to get rid of the "hot money" as soon as possible. Blessing was personally embarrassed because he had recommended revaluation, but Chancellor Kurt Georg Kiesinger overruled him.

Economic observers in Bonn said the government could take three moves to hamper speculation: imposing a "negative interest" levy on foreign holdings in German banks, introducing foreign currency controls, and doubling the 4 per cent extra restrictive levy imposed on exports and the 4 per cent concession sliced off import taxes during last November's monetary crisis.

The crisis began two weeks ago with the resignation of French President Charles de Gaulle. Speculators figured the West German mark would be revalued from 25 cents to 27 cents or more and bought the currency, hoping to make a good profit.

As money poured into the country and trading became hectic on the world's money markets, the West German Cabinet met Friday to consider revaluing the currency but decided against it.

The Social Democrats launched an attack on Kiesinger for the decision. In a radio broadcast Sunday, the party's general secretary, Hans-Juergen Wischnewski, said: "It was a dubious decision which will confront us with many difficulties."

Taxpayers' Resistance Looms, Survey Across Nation Shows

Another mass protest is in progress.

Financial and Commercial

NEW YORK (UPI)—Stocks opened steady in moderately active trading today.

Signs that the nation's economy may be slowing could snap an almost uninterrupted two-week upswing. The National Association of Purchasing Management reported a sharp order rate decline last month, possibly a tipoff to a future cooling of the economy. This comes on the heels of recent reports of a slower growth rate of consumer installment credit in March and a sizable slump in new factory orders in the same period.

signs of impending taxpayer resistance.

Example:

Sought Sur Tax

Gov. Raymond P. Shafer of Pennsylvania stumped across his state leading for establishment of a state income tax to help balance a proposed $2.52-billion budget. At Williamsport, these placards were hoisted before his eyes: "Governor, You Hike, We Strike," and "Join the Taxpayer Rebellion."

Later, in Harrisburg, Shafer was presented a suitcase filled with the names of 50,000 voters opposing the proposed state income tax. The Beaver Falls News-Tribune had printed blank petitions, readers had signed them and editor Bill Northrup carried them to the governor.

In Georgia, Gov. Lester Maddox ran into trouble with the legislature, which refused to approve major tax hike proposals resulting from the governor's $1.1-billion budget. Maddox has offered to resign if the legislature will return in special session and pass his program, including new taxes.

Taxpayers in many states are refusing to pass school bond issues.

Voted on Issues

In one week, Ohioans voted on 117 local school tax issues and rejected nearly 55 per cent of them.

Some of these proposed operating levies failed for the second and third times. Education leaders claim inflation has wiped out $100 million of local education money in the past two years.

In New York City's suburbs, voters have rejected 34 out of 55 school budgets so far this year. Officials see the rejections as a taxpayers' revolt in the face of the failure of the state legislature to provide increases in state aid to local school districts and with teachers demanding higher salaries.

In Great Neck, Long Island voters rejected a $22.2 million budget and elected two school trustees militantly opposed to busing Negro students in from New York City. A busing proposal was defeated in February.

"This is what we expected and this is what we were afraid of," said Milton Kurland, president of the Nassau-Suffolk School Boards Association. "If you can't read this as a taxpayers' revolt, then you have to go back to school."

Large Turnout

Voters turned out in greater numbers than ever before in Mahtomedi, Minn., a suburb of St. Paul, to turn down bond issues for a new senior high school and swimming pool. It was the first time a bond issue ever was rejected in the community.

Two antitax leagues have been formed in Pennsylvania. Edwin Duffield, a Uniontown lawyer, says there are "several thousand members" in the group he's organized in Fayette County.

And the Jefferson County Taxpayers League is seeking injunctions to halt a $1.7-million addition to the Punxsutawney High School and a $2.3-million school expansion at Brookville.

Sex education and portending earthquakes are among elements in the tax battling of Californians.

Sex education—described by many advocates of belt-tightening measures as a "frill" that doesn't need financing—has met with opposition in some districts.

The San Diego Unified School District lost its first bond election in 30 years with the defeat March 13 of a $91.3-million measure intended to finance, among other things, improvement of school buildings declared unsafe in the event of an earthquake.

Kill 3 Proposals

Los Angeles voters roundly refused to pass three school propositions and Supt. Jack Crowther placed the blame on student unrest and taxpayers' desire for tax reform.

Crowther recommended to the Board of Education a 49-cent tax boost coupled with the severest school cutbacks in the city's history—including elimination of athletic programs, bus service, classes in journalism, drama, music and art and trimming about 3,500 staff positions. A Milwaukee group, termed "a unique uprising" by its founder, is borrowing pages from the campus disruptors' textbooks.

"The middle class for years has been afraid to rock the boat," said James P. Bebling, a resident of the North Shore suburb of Whitefish Bay and co-founder of Citizens for Tax Reform.

"But college students and minority groups have shown us that confrontation is necessary if you're going to get results," added Bebling, who said some 300 persons, all earning between $7,000 and $25,000 a year, are paid members of his organization.

Bebling and others marched to the federal building in Milwaukee April 12 in a quiet protest. They taped their list of demands to a glass door at the Internal Revenue Service office.

Honolulu Mayor Frank Fasi, calling Hawaiians "peasants in paradise," proposed a tourist tax which he said would "ease the burden on a community which is already staggering under its taxload."

Said Fasi: "I believe in the preservation of the aloha spirit but we must face... economic reality."

Kingston to Celebrate National Hospital Week

KINGSTON

Hospitals in Kingston area and throughout the nation will observe National Hospital Week beginning Sunday.

The theme for the observance, "Your Hospital — Pathway to Progress in Community Health," emphasizes how today's hospital is establishing new pathways to channel health care into all areas of the community, according to Sister Mary Charles, administrator, the Benedictine Hospital and Anthony R. Triulzi, administrator, Kingston Hospital.

A special feature of this year's observance will be conducted tours of facilities at both local hospitals on Tuesday and Wednesday, May 13 and 14, between 7 and 8 p. m. Members of the respective hospital auxiliaries will act as guides. The tours are open to the general public.

The traditional role of community hospital has been to provide care for patients within its walls, however, hospitals are now evolving into centers carrying a broad spectrum of health services out into the community — services aimed at diagnosis, treatment, rehabilitation, education and prevention.

The Benedictine and Kingston Hospitals are joining with Ellenville Community Hospital and other hospitals in the

Cooperation Is the Idea In Dutchess

RED HOOK

Two Northern Dutchess County community service organizations have decided to band together for greater strength.

The Northern Dutchess Community Service Organization and the Poverty Group met recently and set about working out combination of services. Judy Priven is the chairman for the Poverty Group, and Mrs. Barbara Bird a leader of the NDCS.

A combined meeting, under the name of the NDCS, will be held May 21 to choose officers and align goals. On May 28, the entire group will meet for reports. Both meetings will take place at 10 a. m. at the Christ Church Hall in Red Hook.

Mrs. Bird said, "We are very encouraged. The original idea was for a day care center, but our goals now are to implement as many people as possible in the community in many phases, such as aiding the poor and elderly, helping teenagers in recreation, and caring for young children."

"It was suggested by James Horne, of the Neighborhood Service Organization, that in any day care center project we have the mothers themselves play a role," said Mrs. Bird.

The determination for the original NDCS organization stemmed partially from the public meeting held a month ago. Horne then stated that before any action should be taken, a definite need should be shown. He suggested a questionnaire.

This advice was followed up subsequently by a committee, under the guidance of Professor Bernard Tiegler of the Bard College Sociology Department.

"We were advised by Dr. Tiegler to use a stratified random survey technique, which simply means picking names at random, but trying to limit them to a certain economic group; in this case those of below average income," said Mrs. Bird.

The survey, which hopes to determine needs into which the organization can channel its energies, should begin in about a month.

What of the funding? "Mr. Horne advised us to give priority to exercising the program first; he said that adequate funds could be gotten from several sources for community services of this type," said the chairman.

Summer Job Requests High In Red Hook

RED HOOK

More than 35 applications for the Red Hook Recreation Department posts have been received by director of employment G. Carl Pack.

The applications are for a pool director, lifeguards, and attendants.

Pack indicated that additional applicants will no longer be considered for this season. Those applications already submitted are now being evaluated, with salary offers and starting dates to be established.

Pack announced that 80 gallons of paint, mostly pink, will be used to improve the appearance of the Recreation Park Barn and other fixtures before Dedication Day for the newly created pool.

Woodstock CC: An Impossible Dream Comes True

By CHARLES J. TIANO
SPORTS EDITOR

WOODSTOCK
Woodstock Country Club will remain forever open for golf only as the result of an easement granted to the Town of Woodstock by the Woodstock Property Company.

The holding company owns the 60-acre tract which is bordered by Route 375 and Route 212 at the entrance to Woodstock village.

Woodstock Country Club's membership group has operated the golf course under long term leases since it was founded in 1929.

The so-called negative easement was recently accepted by the Woodstock Town Board and is in perpetuity, according to Martin F. Comeau, a member and attorney for the property company.

Ends Speculation

Acceptance of the easement by the town ended long standing speculation about the future of the attractive parcel of land which is regarded as the most valuable piece of property in the township.

Frank A. Benson, president of property company, and Anthony J. (Tony) DeLisio, vice president, in a joint statement, said granting of the easement made "an almost impossible dream come true."

"The Woodstock golf course will be forever open land and it will always be the beauty spot that graces the entrance to our village," said the Benson-DeLisio statement.

Special

"As majority stockholders of the Woodstock Property Company, we have always been deeply concerned about the future of the Woodstock Country Club," the statement continued.

"It could easily have become another housing development or shopping center, but we have always felt an obligation to perpetuate the foresight and hard work of the pioneers who made the Woodstock golf dream possible," they added. "There has never been any question in our mind that the property would remain a golf club."

Among the pioneers who launched the Woodstock Country Club in 1929 were David Reasoner, who spearheaded the drive; James Stag, Harry Hohnhorst, Clarence McCarthy, Mishka Petersham, Clarence Peters, George A. Neher, Williams S. Elwyn, Walter Seaton, Charles Rosen, William H. Kniffin, Judson P. Phillips and Peter Whitehead.

Only Surviving Members
Hohnhorst and Whitehead are the only surviving members of this predominantly artists group of golf pioneers at Woodstock Country Club.

Attorney Comeau said the legal research leading up to the easement required five or six years.

Passage of the Carlingo Act in 1960 by the New York state legislature opened the way for positive action on the long standing desire for WCC's future shared by Benson and DeLisio.

The Carlingo Act made it possible for owners of property to dedicate it to public service if they wished to maintain it as forever open space. The so-called "negative easement" simply means that it cannot be used for any other purpose than its present form.

Comeau said the property company received valuable legal and technical advice from the Open Space Action Committee of New York City. Funded by an unidentified philanthropy, the New York group assists estates, companies and individuals and makes available legal resources and research to those interested in granting easements.

The Nature Conservancy of Washington, D. C., a national group interested in obtaining easements for towns and counties, and the Woodstock Association also expressed continuing interest in the Woodstock Property Company's plans.

In brief ceremonies at which the easement papers were formally handed over to the Town of Woodstock Friday at Woodstock Country Club, Town Supervisor Milton Houst expressed delight with the transaction.

"I'm very happy the Town of Woodstock could get the assurance of a permanent and pleasing approach to our town."

Substantial Improvements
Down through the years the membership of the Woodstock Country Club, through its Board of Governors, has made substantial improvements and additions to both the golf course and clubhouse facilities.

In addition to Benson and DeLisio, the governors who augmented the dream of the early pioneers included, among others, Michael Taradash, Adolph Heckerroth, Allan Waterous, and Eugene Speicher.

The present board which completed the negotiations for the easement includes Michael Mottolose, president; Walter Van Wagenen, Joseph Fitzsimmons, Floyd A. DeWitt, Arnold Broggi, Frank Murphy, John Grote, Vincent Milora, Kenneth Charlton, Anthony Pizzarelli, Alvin Moscovitz, Charles Prill, David Halpert and Harry Kennedy.

"Despite some propaganda to the contrary," the Benson-DeLisio statement added, "it is not the almighty dollar which fulfilled the dream, but a love affair with golf started more than 40 years by a handful of artists."

"The property company and Woodstock Country Club sincerely hope that their work and sacrifice will stand as an ideal of community awareness to the youth and future citizenry of Woodstock," the statement

Rhinebeck Chamber Opposed to Airport

RHINEBECK
The Rhinebeck Chamber of commerce has registered its unofficial disapproval of the proposed Jumbo SST Jetport scheduled for Northern Dutchess County.

In Thursday evening's meeting, newly elected President Helen Z. Battistoni said that the Chamber will make every effort to determine "exactly what the prospects are" for such facility in the area. None of those present were in favor of the plan.

The concept originated in the publication of a brochure from the New York State Department of Commerce early this year, citing the Rhinebeck-Red Hook area as a "future" and "none-priority" location for a jet cargo airport, capable of handling the Supersonic Transports now being developed.

Red Hook P-TA Day

Red Hook Central PTA Parents' Day will be celebrated 3 p.m. June 7 at Mill Road School by a square and round dance.

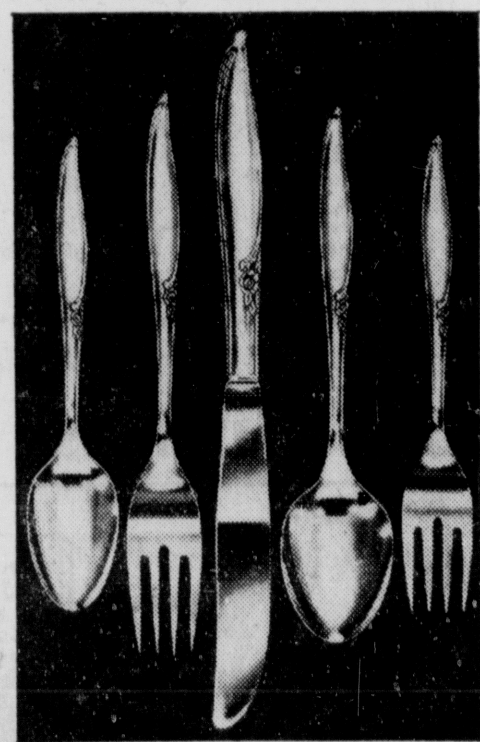

All parents and teachers are invited. Refreshments will be served afterwards.

Public Hearing on Town of Saugerties Trailer Ordinance on May 15

By ALBERT J. CAWEIN.

A public hearing on the new Town of Saugerties proposed house trailer ordinance will be held Thursday, May 15 at 8 p.m. in Saugerties High School auditorium.

The proposed ordinance was unveiled at a public hearing on March 25 when several recommendations were made and noted by Town Attorney Louis P. Francello.

Several Changes

Since that time several amendments and changes have been made to conform with the recommendations.

The new ordinance will have an exclusion clause which will exempt camp trailers for recreation purposes when parked on public or private trailer camp sites within the township.

The requirements for lot size are also amended in the new document and a provision setting a deadline of two years for existing trailers to conform to the ordinance also has been amended.

Francello said the language of the ordinance has been clarified somewhat.

The purpose of the ordinance is to control the health and safety regulations of trailer by sites and trailer courts as defined in the document. The ordinance also controls the size of the trailer site, the streets retained by the County Board within a trailer court and the drainage.

The measure, if approved, specifically prohibits the placement of a house trailer or establishment of a trailer court without a permit issued by the town clerk, and approved by the town board. Each application must be accompanied by three sets of plans and specifications, prepared and drawn to scale by a registered architect or licensed professional engineer. One set is filed with the Town

Planning Board, another is solid base or stable surface at least 10 by 18 feet in size for use as a terrace and located to be adjacent and parallel to the mobile home.

The health department and other authorized town agents shall have the right to inspect the court or trailer site at any or reasonable time and to inspect the records require to be kept days, or by both. Applications for renewal must be filed with the town clerk on or before Dec. 1 prior to the expiration Dec. 31.

There are also specific regulations for house trailers

not located in a trailer court. Fees for individual house trailers are $5.

The proposed ordinance provides that any person in violation of any provision of the law shall be subject to a fine of not more than $100 or imprisonment not exceeding 30 days, or by both.

In addition to the penalties, the Town Board may also maintain an action or proceeding in the name of the town in a court of competent jurisdiction to compel compliance with or to restrain by injunction the violation of the ordinance.

The ordinance shall become effective 10 days after publication and posting, or immediately upon personal service.

The ordinance shall become

Gala Masked Ball Held

MASKS and more masks were seen at HVRT benefit Saturday night in Grasmere, palatial residence of Mrs. Louise Clews Timpson. Behind those very original disguises at the left are Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Pizzarelli of West Hurley. The couple at right are Dr. and Mrs. Edmund Tomaselli of Woodstock. Masks, formals, refreshments and delightful music spelled a social success for the second Masked Ball given for the benefit of the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, Inc. (Freeman photo by Powell).

HVRT BENEFIT — J. Edgar Rosenblum (R) executive director of the Hudson Valley Repertory Theatre, Inc., seems pleased with the turnout for Saturday night's gala Masked Ball. Given at the Rhinebeck residence of Mrs. Louise Clews Timpson, former Duchess of Argyll, the repertory theatre benefit drew a capacity crowd. (Freeman photo by Powell).

Wedding Gifts For the Newly Married Couple

Usually, the most difficult aspect of choosing a wedding gift, even for the best known amongst the bridal couples you will be gifting in the months ahead, is choosing something that is both spectacular and functional but not on everyone else's wedding gift list.

Silverware, naturally, heads the list of gifts. The elegance, the versatility that today's modern bride can find in her silver holloware makes this the most useful of wedding gifts.

Besides the usual trays, bowls, candlesticks, nut dishes, compotes and bud vases, you can find the shining glory of silver in unusual gifts, too. A chaffing dish, buffet server, trivet, sugar and creamer, pepper mill, even a paper weight can be numbered among the unique in silver gifts for the home.

Cordials, on-the-rocks cups, cocktail shaker and bar accessories are more silver gifts especially appreciated by the bridegroom, to whom the bartending chores usually fall. And don't forget silver table lighters and cigarette boxes that bring their own special grace and polish to the simple chore of "lighting up." For absolute magnificence, nothing comes close to the majesty of a silver coffee service. And nothing can make the novice homemaker feel more like an accomplished hostess!

Crystal and china have their honored places in the newlyweds' home decor, also. Towering shapes of colored or clear crystal and delicate china figurines are unusual centerpieces, indeed; crystal platters, vases and pitchers of crystal or china, china serving pieces and compotes, decorative china boxes, candlesticks, ash trays, charming china salt cellars; clearly, there is a wealth of wedding gifting to be had here, any and all of which will delight the bride and bridegroom for many happy years to come.

Clocks, too, are striking as gift ideas for the bridal pair. Clocks add a special note of household cheer and will find a cozy home in most every room of their dream castle.

Remember, a wedding gift for the home is a wish that the bride and bridegroom have comfort, warmth and elegance to surround them in their married years.

CP Benefit Will Be Held May 17

"Happiness is Helping," and once again, as a memorial to the late Hilda Hopkins, the Union Center Civic Group will sponsor a project for the benefit of the Cerebral Palsy Center. Until her untimely death in 1965, Mrs. Hilda Firmbach Hopkins of Poppletown Road, Ulster Park, had found happiness in helping the youth of her community and handicapped children in particular. Her life of service inspired friends and neighbors to pledge their support to a memorial project for the Center each May.

This year's project will be a penny social, cake sale, and sale of donations towards an award to be held on Saturday, May 17, at the Town Hall in Port Ewen, 7 to 9 p.m. All members of the Union Center Civic Group are asked to furnish a suitable article for the penny social and a baked article for the event. Friends who wish to contribute in any way may contact any member of the Group if help is needed in delivering the items.

Through the Hilda Hopkins Memorial Project, we hope to make our contribution to the CP Center this May a substantial one." Mrs. Charles Schoonmaker, president of the Union Center Civic Group, said in announcing the event. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Gary R. Shorette of Brasher Falls, N. Y., announce the birth of their daughter, Christine Ann, on May 4. Mrs. Shorette is the former Ann Glowinski, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Glowinski, 13 Wilbur Avenue, Kingston.

Hints from Heloise

by HELOISE

Dear Heloise:

We recently bought a home and here's my problem . . . Our garage floor is concrete.

Previous owners had left an old car on blocks in the garage for many months and the battery corroded, leaving a huge rust stain on the floor.

I've tried just about everything to remove this stain with absolutely no luck. Any ideas?

Hal

Dear Hal:

If a rusty radiator will cause leaks, it will frequently cause this same stain.

Get some LIQUID rust remover from your grocery store (or drug store) and pour a little of it, full strength, onto the spot. Then, just as soon as the rust begins to dissolve, flush the stain first with water, and then with some vinegar water — (half water and half vinegar). This will counteract the working of the acid.

It may require more than one application, but you'll soon find your stain gone.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

For those of you who must go to the laundromat, the handiest way to take detergent is in a one-pound coffee can marked with ridges on the can. (Look at your can and measure the ridges with water first. You'll see.)

From ridge to ridge it's exactly one cup, and it's a great deal easier than carrying a load of wash and a five-pound box.

Mrs. H. B. Shaw

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

Television has more qualities than were intended . . . Whenever I feel grouchy and want to tell someone to "shut up," I wait until someone on TV has their mouth OPEN, then I push the "off button . . .

It hurts no one's feelings and sure makes me feel better!

Happy

Dear Heloise:

When you are out with a partially blind person, it is helpful if you wear light-colored clothing—white hat or white coat. And you should walk in front of them when in shopping areas or even taking a walk.

The light clothing gives the person who can't see well something to follow and go by.

Winifred Hall

Dear Heloise:

A dog in our neighborhood has been knocking down our garbage can for the past few nights.

I got tired of picking up garbage, so I took one of my Mom's old broom handles and drove it into the ground about a foot. Then I set the garbage can down over it allowing the broom handle to go thru the handle of the can itself.

I haven't had to pick up garbage since . . .

Donald Peas

Age 12
Donald, you are a precious son. Bet your mom and pop are mighty proud of you. I sure am.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Don't throw away those paper tablecloths you buy for children's birthdays before you take a good look at them.

Most of the time the unused parts or borders that hang below the table top, are free of stains and have all the pretty designs on them.

These may be lovely, strong paper napkins. (Even cute placemats.)

Just mark off the size you want and cut with your pinkie shears. You'll have a dozen or more pretty napkins for family use.

Sure makes you feel like you've gotten your money's worth.

Mrs. R. D. Magill

Dear Heloise:

If I'm going to make a salad, I get it ready ahead of time and store it all in a large plastic bag in the refrig. Makes it real crisp.

When it is time to prepare it, all I do is pour the dressing in the bag and shake well.

After I have worked the dressing through the salad thoroughly, I just empty it into a bowl and presto, no messy hands or counter just before dinner.

I also use this same trick for graham cracker crust.

After crushing the crackers in the plastic bag with a rolling pin, I add the butter and sugar and work it together in the same bag.

After it is mixed, I pour it into the pan and have no mixing bowl mess to clean up. I just throw away the bag.

Theresa Hess

LETTER OF LAUGHTER

Dear Heloise:

In the morning, I sit with a cup of coffee and read the hints in your column on how to best clean. Before I know it, it's noon and I've shot my cleaning time just reading "how" to do it!

Jeanne Redenius

Dear Heloise:

Although I am a man, I read your advice every day and it is very practical in all respects. Helpful household hints like yours are really a prime factor in running a well-adjusted household.

Did you know that a quarter (a 25-cent piece) will open any size paint can, whether it be a half-pint or a gallon?

There will be no screw driver marks or gouges on the rim and the rim will fit back into its groove without leaking air. There are no bruised knuckles, no flare-up on the lid.

I suggest people try this the next time they open a can of paint.

Fascinating Hobbies Hold Lucrative Hopes for Women

NINA KINCAID
(Freeman photo by Haines)

By DOROTHY A. NAREL

When NINA KINCAID was teaching folk dancing in the New York City area, teaching classes the Ukrainian method of egg decorating, and later purchasing looms in order to make authentic cloth for costumes, little did she dream that some day her hobby interests would turn into fascinating business ventures.

This talented daughter of Mrs. Martha Kamenko and the late William Kamenko of New York, capitalized on her Ukrainian background by directing her attention to folk art and folk dancing. As a young girl and wife in the Metropolitan area, she taught folk dancing to church groups, in schools and later studied specialized folk dancing with Michael Herman at the Folk Dance House in New York.

Mrs. Kincaid was responsible for establishing Nationality Day in Prospect Park, Brooklyn, a day still observed annually.

Today, Mrs. Kincaid has turned hobby interests into a fascinating gift shop, Folk Art in Woodstock. On Saturday and Sunday she added to her glory. She heralded the official opening of a new boutique corner calling it "To Her With Love."

This is how New York women make their lives meaningful and worthwhile. Although keeping up with the latest in imported folk art is terribly time consuming, Mrs. Kincaid still manages to teach folk dancing at the Creative Arts Camp in Woodstock. Her son by a previous marriage, John Platt, is almost as busy as his mother. Stationed at Fort Bliss, Texas, he is studying Vietnamese. John is one of 40 selected from 30,000 to study the language.

Originally, Mrs. Kincaid planned to be an interior decorator. She studied the subject at the New York School of Interior Design and at Pratt Institute. Today, she puts her interior decorating skills to work at Folk Art.

Whether it's arranging the Madras from India, putting out the custom made earrings and chain belts or completing the Spanish moss decor of the shop, of one thing Mrs. Kincaid is certain—she will never regret the years spent teaching others the joy of folk dancing—it has certainly reaped a harvest for her.

Rose Netburn has been collecting antiques and jewelry for the past 28 years.

When clubs and organizations here and throughout the Hudson Valley were giving exhibits and fairs, Rose was always asked to set up a section of her own because it never failed to earn the endorsement of an enthusiastic public. Reading a great deal, attending lectures laid the groundwork for Mrs. Netburn's own lecture series on antique collecting.

Today, Rose Netburn is another example of a woman who will turn a hobby into a profitable venture. With her fantastic collection of antiques, including old Chinese Jade, unusual boxes, early Dresden China, lamps and antique jewelry, Mrs. Netburn expects to venture into her own business. According to her plans, she will open her shop on Rock City Road in Woodstock this month.

From hobby to business—an easy transition for an enterprising and talented woman.

Rose Netburn is the wife of Edward Netburn, owner of Netburn Plumbing Supply Company in Kingston, a business in the family for the past 50 years. The Netburns have a son Stuart, an engineer, who resides in Newburgh with his wife and two children. A daughter, Mrs. Robert Levitt, resides with her husband and one daughter in Goshen, N. Y.

An active civic worker through the years, Mrs. Netburn still maintains membership in the Eastern Star, Hadasah, B'nai B'rith Women, Sisterhood of Temple Emanuel and has done a great deal of work for the Red Cross and other fund raising drives.

Originally from Newburgh, Mrs. Netburn has resided in Kingston for the past 32 years.

Doing the Right Thing

By ELIZABETH L. POST of the Emily Post Institute
ACROSS THE COUNTRY
IN 1915

This second installment of Emily Post's journey across the United States 54 years ago clearly shows how far automobile travel has progressed.

Conditions then were so impossible that our travelling correspondent (Emily herself) finally admitted it would be the better part of valor to ship the car by rail from Winslow, Arizona, and continue by train.

But even in 1915, the lure of the road (what roads there were!) and the possibility of getting "off the beaten track" made an automobile trip unique. So back to Emily, the "Travelling Correspondent" for Colliers, Cousin Alice, her loyal companion, and Ned, her admiring son and resourceful chauffeur.

Mother's costume for the road consisted of a long blue silk duster. On her head she wore a high toque, shaped like a beehive and tied on with dark blue chiffon veils. Goggles fitted with yellow glass covered her eyes. She looked like an enormous June bug. As we crossed the interminable Nebraska prairie and then headed into the Southwest desert, my mother shed her blue veils for bright orange ones. These, she affirmed, kept off sunburn and blisters. Thirty miles west of Chicago we finally made acquaintance with the Lincoln Highway.

It was a pleasant acquaintance for another 30-odd miles; then we lost it in a sea of mud. This was a foretaste of our experience all the rest of the trip. It wasn't always mud. Sometimes it was dust, six inches deep.

Now and again the road simply petered out to a cattle track across the plains. There was a sublime irony in the signs we saw occasionally fastened to wire cattle fences: LINCOLN HIGHWAY.

The Nebraska speed limit was 20. Averaging 17 miles per hour, the 500 miles between the last good hotel in Omaha and the next comfortable one would take 30 hours' driving.

"To Denver?" I asked. "To Cheyenne. The road to Denver is impassable. Cars are bogged down all the way." It was in Cheyenne that we started conversations with everyone we met.

"You know anything about the Raton Pass?" we inquired of a lunchcounter attendant.

"Lady, they say they've fixed the road some since I was down there, three, four years ago. But take it from me, if you've got to go that way, let your chauffeur take the automobile down, and you walk behind it with the wreath."

We were to remember that advice.

We made the top of the Pass, 8,790 feet, with suspicious ease, overtaking and passing several Tin Lizzies chugging and boiling over like overwrought teakettles.

Our car which had breezed up the grade, was too low and too long for the bumps and twists of the downgrade. We hung perilously and ignominiously on one hillock until two of the Tin Lizzies came along. One pulled, one pushed, and we cleared the obstruction, only to stick on another reef a quarter of a mile beyond. Once some Indians driving a four-horse team hauled us out of a sand pit.

We finally limped into Albuquerque with a battered exhaust pipe and several warning coughs in the motor. In reply to my query—could we cross the desert safely as far as Winslow, Arizona (where the car could be sent on by freight) the mechanic answered, "With luck. But take it easy. Don't push her."

It was still afternoon when we drove over a tedious but uneventful road into Gallup, New Mexico. My mother took one look at the unpainted wooden facade of the frontier hotel and wrinkled her nose disdainfully. The Indian agent who had recommended it had called it "fair," but it was plain he had exaggerated.

"I believe," she said, "that as this is to be our last night touring we should spend it under the stars."

Cousin Alice was resigned, but firm on one point. "I have been, and I still am, willing to put up with a good deal to help make your articles interesting, Emily. But neither for the magazine readers of America, nor for you, nor for any one will I lie down where there may be rattlesnakes, scorpions, and Gila monsters."

The Travelling Correspondent replied, "Of course we shan't sleep on the ground. We'll wrap up in all those coats and steamer rugs and sleep in the car."

The sun was sinking when we came out of a defile to find ourselves atop a high mesa. Below and to all sides the floor of the desert shimmered with waves of vivid colors—red, orange, blue, violet. It was unbelievable.

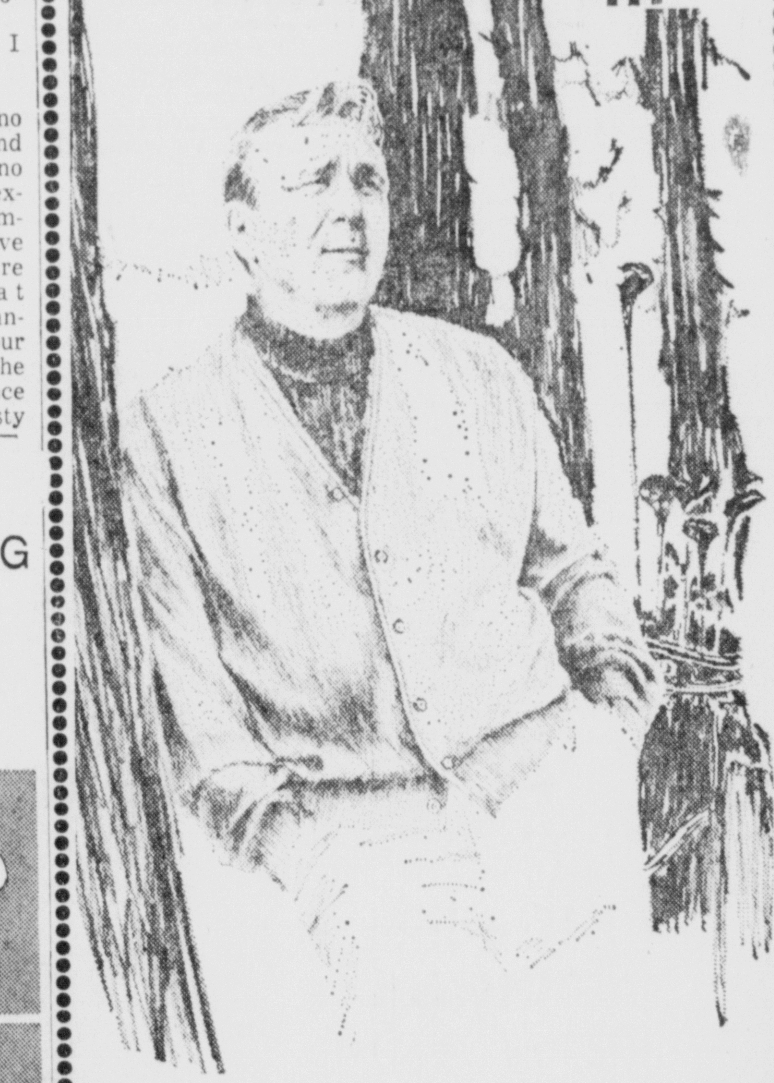

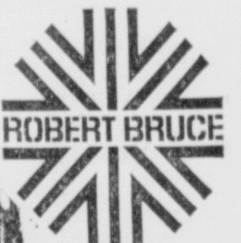

"You wanted a climax," I said. "This is it."

The Lincoln Highway is no longer an imaginary line, and in 1969 you will have no trouble finding it. But in exchange for the ease and comfort of your trip, you will give up the feeling of adventure and accomplishment that Emily Post and her companions had in 1915. To make your trip more exciting, get off the main routes. Take a chance on the potholes and dusty roads and discover a little of the America not seen by most travelers. It will be well worth a few discomforts. If you never meet anyone other than waitresses and gas station attendants, and see nothing but billboards and roadside stands, you will never discover the friendliness of Americans or the beauty of an unspoiled wilderness, as Emily Post and her companions did, way back in 1915.

Cepeda 2, Skinner 0

Phils Gored By Baby Bull

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

Faced with a moment of truth for the second time in 24 hours, Bob Skinner did some quick figuring and decided to take the Baby Bull by the horns again.

When the dust settled, there was blood on the sand—and the scoreboard read: Bull 2, Skinner 0.

Skinner, Philadelphia's percentage-player manager, ordered hot-hitting Hank Aaron walked intentionally with one out and a runner on second base in the ninth inning of Sunday's game against Atlanta.

The gambit backfired, just as it had the previous night, when Orlando Cepeda smacked a run-scoring single that gave the Braves a 4-3 victory and extended the Phillies' losing string to four games.

"It's the same tune with a little different script," muttered Skinner, who had put Aaron on in a similar ninth-inning situation Saturday night before Cepeda's three-run homer wrecked the Phils 6-3.

Sunday's victory boosted the Braves' National League West Division lead to two games over Los Angeles, which was rained out at Pittsburgh.

The Chicago Cubs mauled San Francisco 8-0 for a three-game East Division lead over the idle Pirates; San Diego stunned St. Louis 4-2 and Houston divided a doubleheader with the New York Mets, winning 4-1 before bowing 11-7. Cincinnati and Montreal also were rained out.

After Philadelphia rallied for two eighth-inning runs to catch the Braves, Felipe Alou opened the ninth with a single off reliever Dick Farrell and took second on a ground out.

With first base open and Aaron, a .390 hitter, next up, Skinner chose to take his chances against Cepeda, who was batting .236. The Baby Bull promptly rifled a single to left for his seventh game-winning hit of the young season.

Cepeda has collected 26 hits in 23 games, but has driven in 23 runs—10 more than Aaron. Saturday night's homer, which capped a four-run ninth-inning comeback, was his seventh of the year.

Randy Hundley delivered three runs with a homer and single and Billy Williams poked a two-run homer as the Cubs trounced the Giants behind left-hander Ken Holtzman. Holtzman scattered nine hits for his fifth victory against one loss.

Chris Cannizzaro smashed a tie-breaking, two-run double with two out in the ninth, carrying the Padres past the Cardinals, who have lost 14 of 17 games at home. Nate Colbert's two-run homer tied the game in the seventh. Veteran reliever Jack Baldshun pitched out of a bases-loaded jam in the eighth to earn his fourth victory without a loss.

Larry Dierker fired a five-hitter and Jim Wynn clubbed a two-run homer in the Astros' first game victory at New York. But Houston's pitching and defense fell apart in the nightcap, contributing 12 walks and three errors, while Tommie Agee's second and third homers of the day paced a 12-hit Met attack.

The remaining 13 teams in the American Conference have been aligned. Cleveland and Pittsburgh will be in one conference with Houston and Cincinnati. The Colts and the New York Jets—rivals in last year's Super Bowl when the Jets scored an astounding 16-7 upset—will be in the second division along with Boston, Buffalo and Miami. Oakland, Kansas City, San Diego and Denver will be in the third section.

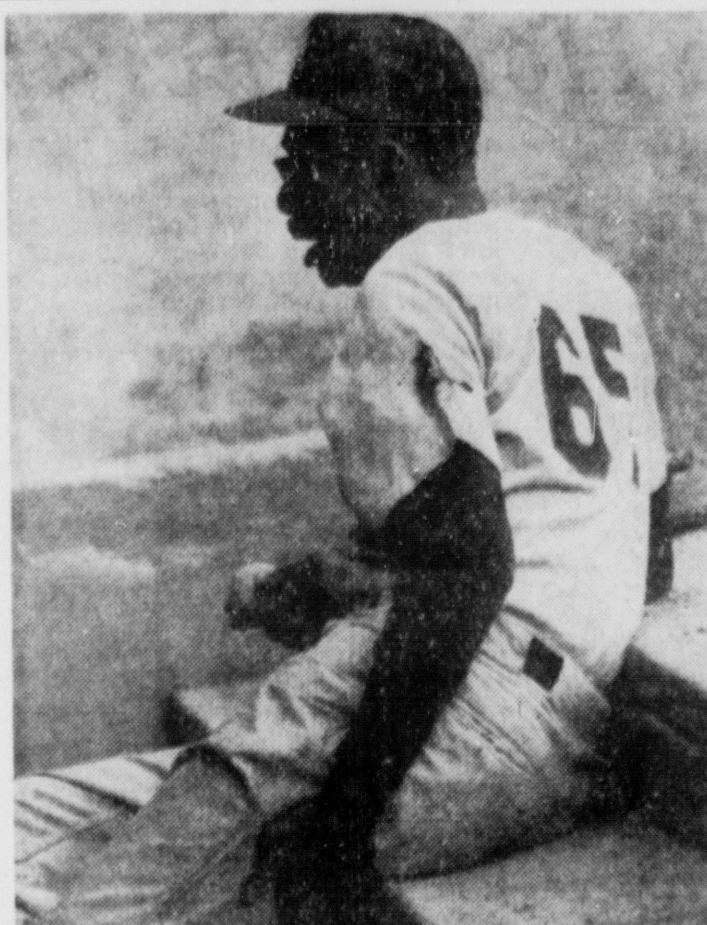

The remaining 13 teams in the National Conference—Atlanta, Chicago, Dallas, Detroit, Green Bay, Los Angeles, Minnesota, New Orleans, New York Giants, Philadelphia, St. Louis, San Francisco and Washington—now must be divided up for play in 1970.

The hassle is on two points. Several of the teams want to be in the same division with the Giants, who always have guaranteed sellouts and give the opposing teams the exposure to the New York-based national media.

Also, the four teams locked into the cold-weather, small-stadium central division—Detroit, Green Bay, Chicago and Minnesota—want to be aligned with at least one of the teams blessed with warmer climates and bigger stadiums.

Regardless of how the teams are divided, Rozelle can now start preparing to sell 1970 package to the TV networks. Presumably, CBS will televise the national conference games and NBC the American Conference games. NBC, which is expected to be happy with the addition of prime NFL markets Cleveland and Baltimore, CBS, which still has the nation's No. 2 (Los Angeles), No. 3 (Chicago), No. 4 (Philadelphia) and No. 5 (Detroit) markets, will probably still be satisfied with the national conference.

CBS also has the edge in the No. 1 market (New York) since the Giants usually do better in the ratings than the Jets do.

This Time Beman Didn't Miss Bird

(By ASSOCIATED PRESS)

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (UPI)—Deane Beman had not been so close to his first pro tournament victory since early last year when he missed a 10-foot putt and lost to Arnold Palmer on the first sudden death playoff hole of the Bob Hope Desert Classic.

When Beman stepped up to another 15-footer on the first sudden-death hole against Jack McGowan in the Texas Open Sunday, he was surprised to find that the putt looked just like the one he missed a year ago.

"I usually don't think about anything except just getting the ball in the hole," he said. "But I was really struck by the similarity of those two putts. I left that other one short, so I decided to go for this one."

The birdie putt dropped and made the 31-year-old Beman the eighth player this year to win his first tournament victory. It also netted him $20,000 and left the disappointed McGowan, who seemed to have the tournament in his grasp two hours earlier, with second-place money of $11,400.

McGowan and Beman finished the regulation 72 holes at 10-under-par 274s, three strokes ahead of Tommy Aaron, Lee Trevino and Dave Hill.

Beman had to shoot a course record-tying 65 on the second of the two rounds played Sunday, and McGowan had to miss an 18-inch putt on the final hole to blow the title.

Petrocelli Relaxes With Sunday Homers

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Some people drive cars for Sunday relaxation. Rico Petrocelli drives baseballs for game-winning, two-run homers.

The Boston shortstop drove a ball over the left field wall with a man on in the fourth inning and then connected again with a mate aboard in the sixth Sunday in leading the Red Sox to a 7-3 victory over the California Angels.

It was the third Sunday out of five this season Petrocelli has won games with two-run homers.

He hit one April 13 to wipe a 1-0 Cleveland lead in a 3-1 Boston victory and another in the 11th inning May 4 for a 4-2 victory over Detroit.

In other American League action Sunday, Baltimore beat Kansas City 5-0. Oakland downed the New York Yankees 2-0. Detroit nipped Minnesota 3-2. Seattle edged Washington 6-5, and the Chicago White Sox topped Cleveland 7-5.

Petrocelli's two homers, his ninth and 10th of the season, just two less than he hit all last year, powered the Red Sox to their eighth straight victory and kept them a game behind first-place Baltimore in the American League's East Division.

The 25-year-old veteran, who hit .234 and drove in 46 runs in 1968, now has the second-best average of .360 in the American League and 16 RBI. He also has fielded flawlessly in all 29 games and has an errorless streak of 33, 20 less than the American League record set by Chico Carrasquel with the White Sox.

Baltimore's Jim Palmer, a shutout victim twice in a row after winning his first three decisions, did the blanking this time, stopping Kansas City on three hits. Frank Robinson hit a two-run homer for the Orioles, his 11th of the season and first since April 30. Oakland's sixth straight victory moved the Athletics to within 12 percentage points of first-place Minnesota in the West Division.

Jim "Catfish" Hunter yielded just three hits in sending New York to its fourth consecutive loss and 11th in the last 12 games. Bert Campaneris and Hunter drove in the Oakland runs.

Denny McLain, 5-3, drove in the deciding run for Detroit against Minnesota. McLain, who got relief help from Pat Dobson, gave Detroit a 3-0 lead with an RBI single in the sixth. Jim Price and Al Kaline homered for Detroit and Tony Oliva connected for Minnesota.

Frank Howard blasted his 12th and 13th homers, the second coming with a man in the seventh to give Washington a 5-5 tie, but Seattle won the game when Don Mincher homered in the ninth. Howard also singled in a run for the Senators, who have lost five straight.

Chicago sent Cleveland reeling to its 21st loss in the 25 games when Sandy Alomar broke a 4-4 tie with a three-run double in the eighth. Ken Berry then protected the margin by making a great catch of a long drive by Cleveland's Rich Scheinblum with a man on in the ninth.

Historic Double for Stan

WESTBURY, N. Y. (UPI) —

Stanley Dancer completed an historic double Saturday night when he won the $182,976 Messenger Stakes with Bye Bye Sam at Roosevelt Raceway before 33,438 fans one hour and 30 minutes after he had won the $35,000 James P. Clark Memorial at Liberty Bell in Philadelphia.

Dancer took a helicopter from Liberty Bell immediately after winning the Clark with his Australian import, Adaptor. The 110-mile flight from Liberty Bell took about 48 minutes.

Bye Bye Sam, returning $9,660, was timed in 2:02.3 for this 14th Byrd-Cathy J. Hanover.

edition of the richest race held this year in both thoroughbred and standardbred racing.

Laverne Hanover, the reputed super horse who was oared from the wagering, finished third in one of the all-time harness racing upsets. Temper- ed Yankee finished second, a nose back of the winner and three-quarters of a length before Laverne Hanover.

Bye Bye Sam earned $91,488-38 for owner Jane Falley Call, wife of the chairman of Maywood Park in Illinois. It was only the third time that Dancer had driven the son of Bye Bye Byrd-Cathy J. Hanover.

New Paltz' 5-1 Mark Tops UCAL Standings

New Paltz High, the UCAL baseball leader, takes its 5-1 record to Walkkill (3-3) in the feature league game Tuesday. Runnerup Pine Bush (4-2) is idle but in other pairings, Onteora (3-3) is winless Walkkill (0-6), while Highland travels to Rondout. Each has a 3-3 record.

Arlington leads the Dutchess County Scholastic League (DCSL) with five victories and one tie in six outings. Runnerup

Pine Plains (2-0) paces the four-team Harlem Valley section.

The fifth and sixth holes, a par-5 and par-3 in succession, are among the most demanding on the course.

The fifth is the longest on the course—a par five, 540 yards, with water and woods along the entire right perimeter of the hole. It is well trapped on lower left side of the green.

About 50 yards of water confront the golfer off the par 3, 135 yard sixth. Both sides of the green are trapped and overlying strong approaches to the green can catch both water and woods.

The 390-yard, par-4 ninth is a fine finishing hole. It is a downhill hole, with a rise toward the green at 275 yards. There is a stream at the bottom of the hill and opening of about 65 yards through heavy woods to the green.

The course has five par-4 holes, a pair of par-3's and two par-5's. It is a challenging test of golf, in an attractive setting with plenty of water hazards, woods, traps and a few dog-leg holes.

Fairways are in fairly good condition helped by recent rains and the greens, as could be expected, still need grooming. Heavy equipment tracks dot the landscape but the real golf buff will not be deterred by such things.

Davenport is working hard to get the course in the best possible condition during 1969. His goal is to have Stone Dock in top condition for next season.

Davenport and his family live in Stone Ridge. His wife, Elaine, is an accomplished golfer but most of the time is kept busy watching their three children—Christopher 9, Dwight 8 and Margaret 5. In her rare free time, she is busy helping Tom at the course.

New Golf Course Open In High Falls Area

By JIM MASSA

The new Stone Dock golf course, owned and operated by Thomas Davenport, is open to the public for play.

Carved out in the rolling country near High Falls hamlet, it stretches about 3025 yards for men, 2640 for women and plays to a men's par 36.

Playing conditions are about what you would expect in a brand new course, but in due time Stone Dock should rate with the fine nine-hole layouts in the county.

Paul Silas To Phoenix

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI)—The Phoenix Suns today obtained 6-foot-7 forward Paul Silas from the Atlanta Hawks in a National Basketball Association trade.

The Suns gave Gary Gregor, their top choice in the 1968 college draft, and another player who will be named later.

Coach John Kerr told a news conference the second player would be one of those recently drafted in this year's round, not a member of the current squad.

"We're committed to putting a winning team on the floor as soon as possible," said General Manager Jerry Colangelo, whose team finished last year with a 16-66 record.

"Last season we paid dearly for lack of rebounding. This season we'll be much improved."

Silas, a five year veteran of the NBA, averaged 13.4 points a game and 11.7 rebounds last season. Gregor averaged 11 points and nine rebounds.

"We were very reluctant to give up Gregor," said Colangelo. However, Silas is moving into the prime of his career and his aggressiveness under the boards and experience will be a tremendous asset."

Kerr said Silas was probably "the first bona fide rebounder the Suns have had."

He said Silas "goes to the basket with the ball and will be getting more than his share of offensive rebounds. He should fit into our running style of play."

Silas said by telephone from Atlanta that he was very happy about the trade.

"I have been wanting to get traded," Silas said. "I haven't had a chance to play that much with the Hawks, and I hope I can help the Suns win."

UCCC Tossers Check Rockland, 6-3

KINGSTON Ulster County Community College's baseball Senators can't win the Mid-Hudson Conference title with their 4-3 record, but they can assume the spoiler role when they host Orange County tonight at 8 o'clock at Dietz Stadium.

Coach Al DiBernardo's tossers trounced Rockland, 6-3, Saturday at Dietz to even their record at 6-6 overall and 4-3 in the MHC.

If UCCC beats Orange County tonight, the conference title goes to Dutchess. But Orange can force a playoff by beating the Senators.

Another strong pitching performance by Charlie Moore and timely hitting by Ron Valle and Mike Patrick secured the Saturday victory for UCCC.

Moore, in addition to hitting in his 11th straight game, spun a 7-hitter, struck out seven and walked three for his third win in five decisions.

Valle slammed a pair of doubles in five trips and Patrick knocked in two runs with a triple during UCCC's four-run rally in the third. Moore and Mike Derrenbacher stroked two singles apiece among Ulster's 10 hits off three Rockland pitchers.

UCCC collected five of its 10 hits for four runs in the third. Valle launched the rally with a double and Derrenbacher singled him to third. Patrick's triple to left center scoring Valle and Derrenbacher.

He held third while Moore grounded out and Larry Tripodo popped up. Jeff Perry's single sent Patrick home and a single by Charlie Lay and a catcher's error accounted for the fourth run.

Ulster picked up a run in the sixth when Patrick walked with two outs and came home when seventh was the result of Rockland pitcher threw Moore's successful drag bunt single past first base into right field.

Rockland shaved the margin to 5-2 in the seventh on walks to Hoover and Salazzo and back to back singles by Al Stanivich and Lou Menna.

Ulster's final run in the seventh was the result of Perry's walk. Lay's sacrifice bunt and Valle's second double of the game.

A fielder's choice, walk and Stanivich's single produced a Rockland run in the eighth. Stanivich hit three singles and drove in two runs for Rockland. Bob Gessner, Rockland's starter was charged with the loss.

Kickers' Rally Edges Haledon, 3-2

WAYNE TOWNSHIP, N. J. Stunned in the first minute of play, the Kingston Sport Club Kickers rebounded to edge Haledon of New York, 3-2, Sunday and remain a point behind league leading Hoboken Football Club in the torrid race for the Premier Division title in the German-American Soccer Association.

With two weeks remaining on the 1968-69 schedule, Hoboken leads the league with 27 points. Kingston is next with 27, followed by New York Hungarians with 25 and Newark Sport Club 24.

Kingston travels to Austria next Sunday, then meets Newark in a climactic clash at Oehler's Mountain Lodge on Sunday, May 25.

Eugene (Gino) Ventriglia, the Kickers' former All-American, drilled the winning goal for the New York team on a combination from Tony Fitzharris and Lee Roberts at the 72-minute mark. It was his second goal of the day.

Heiss, the Haledon center forward, drilled one past goalie Ron Biggers of Kingston one minute after the opening whistle when the Kickers apparently got crossed up on their defensive signals. Biggers had been pressed into action as goalie when Bill Newmarchycky was unable to play.

Ventriglia's first goal came on an assist from Elliott Pobbias at the 18-minute mark. Heiss, with an assist from Frederick, scored his second goal at the 24-minute mark for Haledon and it stayed that way until the end of the half.

Kingston thoroughly dominated the action in the second half and missed at least three more goals when well directed kicks bounced off the goal posts.

Jimmy Reinhardt tied it up with a penalty kick at the 60-minute mark and 12 minutes later Ventriglia delivered the clincher.

"It wasn't as close as the score might indicate, said Coach Bob Graves. "It could easily have been 8-2, but we'll take it."

age 18 and over. Prepare now for U. S. Civil Service job openings during the next 12 months.

Government positions pay high starting salaries. They provide much greater security than private employment and excellent opportunity for advancement. Many positions require little or no specialized education or experience.

But to get one of these jobs, you must pass a test. The competition is keen and in some cases only one out of five pass.

Lincoln Service has helped thousands prepare for these tests every year since 1945. It is one of the largest and oldest privately owned schools of its kind and is not connected with the Government.

Dear Abby

Loved! Told! Now?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1969 by Chicago Tribune-N. Y. News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: I am a 49-year-old divorcee who had a three-year affair with a married man when he visited my city (twice a month) on business.

Well, all of a sudden his conscience started to bother him so this dirty rat told his wife everything—in detail. He even turned over to his wife all the letters I had written to him, and she sent them to my mother along with a complete list of hotels and dates I met him in his room.

He tells me that this is the only way he knows to relieve his wife of all the anguish she has suffered because of me, and now he wants to make it up to her and start over again with a clean slate.

What about me? I bought him an expensive watch, which his wife soaked in salt water and returned to me—ruined!

Is there any way I can get back at him legally? I have letters from HIM, too.

BITTER

DEAR BITTER: If I were you, I'd quit losers.

DEAR ABBY: My son got a girl in trouble and they got married, and now they have a wonderful baby boy they both love. They love each other, too, and are very happy together.

The problem is my husband. He refused to go to the wedding when these kids got married, and he wouldn't go to see the baby when it was born. In fact, the baby is nearly a year old, and he still hasn't seen it. He says, "Those kids will pay for their shame. I want nothing to do with them!" If he sees them on the street he won't even speak to them.

Abby, I know my son did add years to her love life, but I am willing to forgive and forget. My son doesn't know this, but his father hasn't led such a clean life that he can cast stones at anyone.

This is breaking my heart. What can I do? HEARTSICK DEAR HEARTSICK: Don't nag your husband about it. If you haven't been able to make him see how wrong he is for "playing God" and sitting in judgment, ask someone whom your husband respects (a clergyman, perhaps) to talk to him. A grudge-bearer invariably punishes himself far more than those he hopes to punish.

DEAR ABBY: I know you can't publish every letter you receive, but even this is a very delicate subject, I hope you will print it, as it contains a very important message for many wives. Perhaps I should be completely honest and confess that it is meant for my own wife whom I cannot bring myself to tell.

Wives write to you by the dozens, complaining that they do not get the physical love they need. Have they ever considered that perhaps there is a reason? I know of no better way to say this than, "feminine hygiene."

Nothing turns a man on quicker than a freshly bathed, sweet-smelling woman. And nothing turns him off quicker than one who is not.

I love my wife. She keeps a spotless house, and a man couldn't want a better mother for his children. But she is careless about her person. I realize she is tired, but if she would add 10 minutes to her day by taking a bath, dabbing on a little body powder, and a dash of cologne, she could enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Bids, Play Rank Super-silliest

By Oswald & James Jacoby.

Jim: "Here is a hand from the qualifying session of the Open Pairs in Cleveland that may well be recorded as the silliest hand of all time."

Oswald: "It will have to go some to beat many of the hands I've seen thrown back and forth in the 42 years contract has been played. Let's see it."

Jim: "North and South were having a bad session and South was rather annoyed with the whole thing. We don't know whether he opened one no-trump by mistake or annoyance. Anyway, he bid it and North responded two spades, which was a minor-suit transfer bid. South rebid three clubs and then tried three hearts over his partner's three-diamond call. I don't understand North's three-spade bid but South decided that it might be showing spades. Hence his bids of four and six spades. Eventually North went to six no-trump and with East and West playing some form of give-away, South brought that contract home."

Oswald: "Let's see if I can work it out. West starts with the lead of his fourth best spade. South wins in dummy and takes a club for a finesse. He continues until left with one in his hand. West discards one spade and one heart."

Jim: "That's close. Actually South held the third club in dummy and finessed his jack of hearts. Then he led his singleton diamond and played dummy's jack. East ducked and South played a second heart to his hand. Then he led his king of spades. West took the ace and continued that suit. Now South cashed his hearts. West discarded another spade on the last heart and South's spades were all good."

Oswald: "You are right. The combination of bidding and play makes this the silliest hand of this year, if not of all time." (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Jean Adams' TEEN FORUM

HEART POUNDER: (Q.) This boy is in most of my classes. My heart pounds when he comes near me. But he goes with my best friend. Please help me. I'm 13. He's 15.—Stuck in Seattle.

(A.) Don't go behind your girl friend's back. Talk to her openly and honestly about your feelings.

If you find out she doesn't care too much about your heart-pounding, you can start giving him signs that you're interested. If she does like him a lot, though, don't try to take him away from her.

Let your heart beat fast a few weeks or months. It won't jump out of your chest. In time the boy may turn to you. Boys have a radar for beating hearts.

FACE TEST: (Q.) Is there any place I can write to find out (1) What shape my face is, (2) What hair style is best for me, (3) How to color my hair without damaging or drying it?—L. in Bristol, Conn.

(A.) You can figure out the shape of your own face. First take off all make-up. Then tie a towel or scarf around your face. Then look in the mirror.

Your face may be long, round, triangular, or some other shape. Or it may be oval.

Oval is the ideal shape. If your face isn't oval, the magic trick is to find a hair style that will make it look oval. If it's triangular-shaped, for instance, you need less hair down low where you're wide and more at the top, where you're narrow.

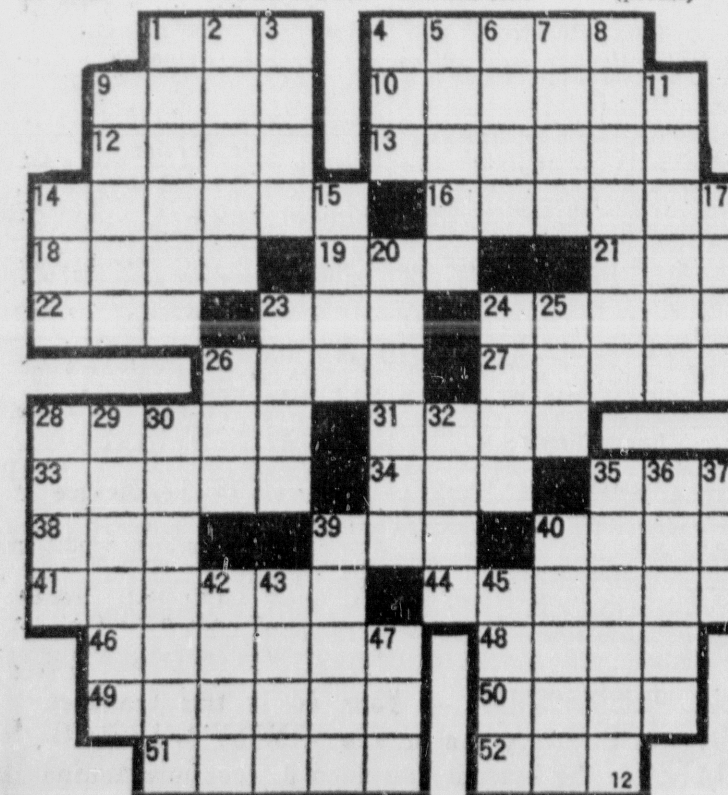

Finding the best hair style, though, isn't easy. Many girls never do. A good stylist can sometimes do in a few minutes what you take years trying to do.

A good stylist can also advise you on hair color. It's an especially good idea to have this job done professionally to be sure it's done right.

faux pas (foe PAH)
an embarrassing social blunder
After spilling soup on the customer, the waiter, humiliated by his stupid faux pas, remained in the kitchen for the rest of the evening.
The law student was very careful what he said to the girl; he did not want to commit a faux pas on their first date.
After her second faux pas in one morning, the clumsy nurse was told to go home and rest her nerves for a couple of days.

Dick, Mary Tyler Surprise

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The surprise of the national television ratings for the two weeks ending April 20 is not that the Academy Awards Show on ABC-TV finished on top.

What is surprising, however, is that CBS-TV's one-hour special with Dick Van Dyke and Mary Tyler Moore gave the Oscars a real run for its money in placing second. The ratings, in short, are rather tight at the top.

Van Dyke and Miss Moore, of course, were very large video favorites in their old CBS-TV situation comedy series, and it was quite a blow to the network when Van Dyke quit his weekly program while it was highly rated.

Reteaming Did Trick

The reteaming with Miss Moore, however, really did the trick for him and for the network in the latest special. That show, to no one's surprise, relied heavily on memories of their old series, and the public was ready and waiting. Future specials continuing to reteam Van Dyke and Miss Moore would seem logical.

CBS-TV, meanwhile, must be shaking its corporate head when contemplating how many of its top stars quit their series while doing well. Van Dyke was only one example.

This past season, Andy Griffith bowed out of his series when it was No. 1 in the ratings.

Furthermore, Jim Nabors, whose "Gomer Pyle" series is right near the top of the ratings, is quitting after this season to attempt an hour variety show each week on the same network starting this fall.

Worthy of Note

Several other specials in the latest ratings are worthy of note because of their great success. One is NBC-TV's Bill Cosby Hour, which came in third behind the Oscars and the Van Dyke-Moore outing.

An indication of Cosby's prestige in the video industry is that he will be the Hollywood host for CBS-TV's Emmy Awards Show June 8. Merv

Griffin, who starts a late-night talk - and - entertainment series on CBS-TV Aug. 18—competing with Johnny Carson and Joey Bishop—will be the New York host for the Emmys.

Dinah Shore, meanwhile, finished ninth among all shows in her recent NBC-TV special Dyke, Miss Moore and Mr. with Lucille Ball, Rowan and Cosby.

The Campus Outlook: More of the Boycotts

By United Press International

Student boycotts were on tap today at Stanford University, Dartmouth College and the University of Rhode Island, a sit-in continued at Lincoln University in Missouri and protesters maintained a quiet vigil outside the Marietta (Ohio) College administration building.

The Stanford strike was called to protest military research at the Stanford Research Institute. The institute has been the target of sit-ins and other protests throughout the early part of the year.

Today was also the ninth day of a fast for two Stanford students camping outside the door of President Kenneth S. Pitzer.

One hundred Dartmouth students met late Sunday to consider action in support of 45 students jailed last week in the wake of a sit-in. They said their protest would be peaceful.

A U.S. District Court judge Sunday denied motions for writs of habeas corpus for the jailed students. He said he acted on Sunday because "this is a very unusual case." The students are serving 30-day sentences.

Black students at the University of Rhode Island said they would boycott classes today because of low black enrollment, absence of a black studies program and a shortage of black faculty members.

Rhode Island University has 50 blacks among its 8,000 students. A statement from the administration said the school has trouble recruiting blacks because so few attend high school in the state.

About 75 protesters continued a sit-in at Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo. Some 175 students, mostly black, entered the building Friday and presented a list of 30 demands, including academic, social and athletic items. About half the school's 2,300 students are black.

Marietta College students Saturday ended a boycott over the expulsion of the president of the student body, but planned new forms of protest to keep the issue alive. Some maintained a round-the-clock vigil circling the administration building and 98 of the school's 2,000 students planned a hunger strike. Some 1,400 set up picket lines Friday.

OLEAN, N.Y. (UPI) — The president of St. Bonaventure University tossed the local chapter of the Students for a Democratic Society off campus Sunday and pledged to do the same to any students who disrupt an upcoming ROTC review.

Sustained Applause

The Rev. Reginald Redlon drew sustained applause from more than 1,500 students and visiting parents—and received a standing ovation—after he declared the SDS "anti-democratic, anti-Christian" and opposed "to everything for which this university stands."

"I challenge the SDS and any other radical group to prove that the ideal to which they are committed is constructive and involves respecting the rights and freedoms of others," Redlon said after a Mother's Day Mass celebrated during parents' weekend.

Redlon said the SDS group distributed its literature to numerous young people on campus in recent days. The content of the literature, he said, proved "unquestionably" that the SDS "opposed all that our republic and our church and this institution stands for—and therefore I am banning that organization on this campus."

The literature Redlon spoke of was distributed May 8 by SDS members among some of the 2,500 high school journalists who attended the university's annual press day.

The leaflets included excerpts from leftist publications and outlined the opinions of the SDS on Vietnam, the draft and student militancy.

Redlon also said he would "immediately" suspend or expel anyone "who in anyway" disrupts the Reserve Officers Training Corps award ceremonies scheduled for Friday.

Charles Dougherty, president of the student senate which granted the SDS a charter to organize on campus in a 9.3 vote last December, called Redlon's order "a violation of the U.S. constitution and the joint statement of rights and responsibilities as adopted by the (student) senate."

He said it was "an affront to the student body since it has stripped their legitimate representatives of the traditional right to recognize organizations," Dougherty said as far as he was concerned the SDS chapter "still exists."

The student senate permitted the chapter on campus despite a "non-binding" student referendum in which more than 51 per cent of the voting students cast ballots against recognition.

Exact Number Unknown
The exact number of SDS members among the 2,300 students enrolled at the university was unknown, but campus sources said the figure was small.

Redlon also said he was tightening security measures on campus because of recent vandalism and attempts at breaking into his office and because of rifling of confidential files, including faculty evaluations, from the office of the economic vice president.
